

WELLSVILLE AND LISBON WILL LOSE MILL PLANTS

Word Given Out That They Are to Be Removed Within Three Months.

TRUST HAS ITS REASON

Few of the Strikers at Wells-ville Are Without Employment.

MATTERS ARE NOW VERY QUIET

A Party of Union Men Departs for the County Seat to Attend a Ball Game And to Be the Guests of the Lisbon Amalgamated.

The announcement was made in East Liverpool yesterday by a man who is in a position to know, that both the Wellsville sheet mill and the tin plate concern at Lisbon would be removed within the next three months. When pressed for an explanation the gentleman refused to go into details, but assured his auditor that he had received his information from a most reliable source. He stated there had never been any good reason for establishing the plant at Lisbon aside from the $60,000 bonus received, and that the big trust had excellent reasons for taking it away.

As to Wellsville, Manager Brookman, at the beginning of the strike, asserted that unless the mill could be run non-union, it would not be run at all.

Excitement in the strike situation at Wellsville is on the decline. Few if any of the strikers are there. The majority of the men are now employed at labor other than mill work. The only incident in the strike situation today was the departure of 20 strikers, in a wagon, for Lisbon, to attend a ball game there, which was to be played this afternoon.

While at Lisbon these men will be entertained by the members of the Amalgamated Association of that town. The local men are expected to return home late tonight. The trip was made solely for pleasure.

It is now given out that 10 turns are working at the mill instead of eight, which were on last week. If this be the case it is evident that new men have gone to work. A reporter could not get this report confirmed at the office of the company this morning.

Deputy Organizer George D. Evans, who went to Lisbon yesterday afternoon, is expected in Wellsville tomorrow.

WON'T HANDLE IT

Lisbon Tin Plate Workers Resolve Not to Touch Imported Plate.

Lisbon, August 14.—At a special meeting of the local lodge of the Tin Plate Workers' International Protective Association, composed of men of the American tin plate plant here, resolutions were unanimously adopted upholding the strike of the Amalgamated and forbidding members to handle imported black plate.

David Jones, the night foreman, and H. G. Hollinger, master mechanic, have promised to come back into the union.

CLERKS' MEETING

Session Well Attended And Interesting—Favor Labor Day Participation.

The retail clerks held a well attended meeting at their hall last evening and a number of important matters were acted upon.

The question of turning out on Labor day was discussed, and while the membership was favorable to the idea, it was thought best to defer definite action until the next meeting.

There being a vacancy in the list of delegates representing the union in Trades Council, R. C. Shenkel was chosen to fill the place.

BRIDGE IMPROVEMENT

Structure Leading to Chester to Be Thoroughly Overhauled And Practically Rebuilt.

Many changes are to be made upon the East Liverpool bridge spanning the Ohio river between this city and Chester. In fact, it is said, the bridge will almost be rebuilt. Yesterday a reporter interviewed John Spivey, one of the chief toll keepers of the bridge, who said:

"The plans for the remodeling of the bridge have been lying in an East Liverpool office for some time. Those plans call for an entire set of new beams and afterward the bridge will be double tracked. This work will not be commenced until next spring, but it is sure to be finished before the heavy travel begins next summer. The rails that will be laid will be the standard rail, used on all the large roads throughout the country. The improvements will involve an expenditure of thousands of dollars."

Surveyors for the Columbian County Telephone company yesterday measured the length of the bridge for the new cables the company proposes to stretch across the river from East Liverpool to Chester. The cables will be ordered at once, and will be placed on the bridge as soon as possible.

HICKEY BOUND OVER

PLEADED GUILTY TO CHARGES MADE BY HIS SON.

Accused Drunk When the Constable Went After Him—Trial Today.

At the time set last evening for the trial of Teddy Hickey, who was arrested at the instance of his son, who filed an affidavit for a peace warrant in Justice McLane's court, the accused failed to make his appearance. He had been released after his arrest on his promise to call at the justice's office, and when he failed to do so Constable Powell went in search of the man.

Going to Hickey's home the officer found him there, but he was then sleeping off a powerful "jag" and was not disturbed. This morning he was taken before the magistrate and admitted the charges made against him by his son.

Justice McLane bound the accused over to court in the sum of $200. The bond was furnished by Charles Hayden and Hickey released. He was soon at work at his old job on the streets.

DATES CONFLICT

Panhandle And M. P. Picnics Both Scheduled for Rock Springs Tomorrow.

Pastor W. H. Gladden, of the First M. P. church, issued the following statement this morning:

"This (Wednesday) morning I have learned that there is to be a big railroad picnic run in on us tomorrow at Rock Springs park. Mr. Maxwell, the manager of the grounds, disclaims any responsibility, and tells us that an authority higher than himself peremptorily arranged for this Panhandle picnic for Rock Springs tomorrow."

"This condition is discovered so late in the week that I fear great confusion will ensue. It would hardly be desirable to take a Sunday school picnic into a crowd like that; besides, we have invited other schools from a distance. Let all who are interested come without fail to the prayer meeting tonight."

KILNS TO BE ADDED

Probable Enlargement of the Lythe Sewer Pipe Plant at Wellsville.

It is probable the Lythe sewer pipe works, located at Wellsville, which were sold to the American Sewer Pipe company some time ago, and at which the company will commence making fire brick soon, will be enlarged. During the past week civil engineers have been at work surveying the land about the plant, and, it is said, several new kilns are to be built.

T. F. Anderson, of the East End, who has charge of this works, said today that almost all the improvements that were contemplated at these works had been completed, and that the work of making brick would begin within one week.

No Meeting Probable.

Although the board of education should meet in regular session in the directors room in Central building next Monday evening, it is not likely that a meeting will be held. There is practically no business to be transacted by the board, and Secretary Walter B. Hill is out of the city visiting relatives at Marquette, Mich. A meeting may not be held before his return.

DID NOT MAKE HIS POLICY VOID

Man Entitled to Insurance Money Though He Kept Gasoline in a Can.

A DIVORCE IS SOUGHT

By a Wellsville Man Who Charges His Wife With Immoral Conduct—Troubles of the Chamberlains to Be Taken to Common Pleas Court.

Lisbon, August 14. — (Special)—Judge Hole yesterday, in the case of John E. Evans, of Lisbon, against the German Insurance company, rendered a decision of interest to all property owners. Evans brought suit against the insurance company to recover $187 from loss by fire. The company answered that the insurance policy on the property had been rendered void previous to the fire, because the insured kept a can of gasoline in his dwelling. The terms of the policy were that no gasoline be kept on the insured premises, except what might be kept in the reservoir of a gasoline stove.

Judge Hole held that gasoline being in a can in the house would not render the policy void unless the fire was started by the gasoline.

Frank E. Campbell, of Wellsville, has brought suit for divorce against his wife, Sarah J. Campbell. He says that on November 24, 1900, Mrs. Campbell was guilty of infidelity, and names F. Franz as the co-respondent. He claims she is now in an immoral resort in Wheeling. Campbell asks for the custody of his minor son George.

The ejectment suit of Celina Chamberlain against Jacob N. Chamberlain, of St. Clair township, has been brought into common pleas court on error. Justice McKenzie decreed that the defendant should render possession of the farm occupied by him to Celina Chamberlain in September and that the defendant should pay the costs of the suit. Jacob Chamberlain claims that, since Celina was not entitled to the immediate possession of the farm, judgment should have been rendered in his favor and the costs taxed against the plaintiff.

The term of court adjourned yesterday.

WEDDED AWAY FROM HOME

John Kelly and Miss Maggie House, of This City, Married at California, Pa.

At California, Pa., at the residence of T. J. Underwood, John Kelley and Miss Maggie House, daughter of Mrs. Sallie E. House, of Fifth street, were married this afternoon by Rev. Mr. Miller, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church of California.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly are well known here, both having resided in this city for many years. Tomorrow the young couple will go to Buffalo, where they will spend several weeks visiting the exposition. Upon their return to this city they will go to housekeeping.

THE CALCUTTA LINE

Extension of the Street Car Tracks Its Entire Length Promised Soon.

The East Liverpool street railway has completed the work of extending its Calcutta road line to the Thompson residence near the new park, and Superintendent Reed expects that within three weeks the road will be finished the entire length of the boulevard.

Some of the laborers who were taken off this part of the road and sent to Wellsville to improve the road there will be returned to the boulevard route as soon as the Wellsville tracks are brought up to the grade.

THIS CITY TO HAVE

AN O. N. G. COMPANY

Lieutenant George Anderson, of the East End, formerly with Company E, Eighth Ohio volunteer infantry, has secured a sufficient number of names to form a company to represent East Liverpool in the vacancy now existing in the Eighth regiment. This week a meeting of those who propose to become members of the new organization will be called for the purpose of arranging for the formation of the company. Lieutenant Anderson this morning said:

ARRESTED AT HIS HOME

Pools of Blood Found By Officer on the Floor—Begged for Leniency, But It Was No Go—Other Doings at Police Court.

Mayor Davidson has often made the statement that if it were possible for him to do so, he would be tempted to condemn all wife beaters brought before him to be executed or imprisoned for life. It is seldom the case that he is disposed to be lenient with a prisoner found guilty of this offense, and a man who comes before him and attempts to excite sympathy by offering petty excuses might just as well save his breath.

When his honor appeared at his office this morning he found on his desk one of the police officers' slips on which was written the following: "Buck Dobbins, arrested by Aufdeheide and Stafford for wife beating and disorderly conduct. This man beat his wife until the blood was standing in pools about the floor."

Dobbins was arrested last night at his home on Second street, and placed in jail. This morning he was taken before the mayor, where he attempted to beg off, giving as his reason for whipping his wife that he was drunk. It is said that this is not the first time Dobbins has been guilty of this offense, but it is also said that Mrs. Dobbins is partially to blame, for the reason that she refused to take the advice of relatives and friends to quit living with her husband, who, it is alleged, does not support her.

The mayor listened to Dobbins' flimsy excuse and then fined him $25 and costs and committed him to the workhouse. He will be taken to Canton tomorrow.

Dale Cassidy was picked up last night by Officer Mahoney while in a bad state of intoxication. The patrol took the fellow to jail and this morning he was fined $1 and costs, which he paid.

Dan Gourley was arrested this morning by Officer Morris. He was found lying on the river bank near the flint mill conspicuously and cadaverously "corned." The patrol did the rest and this afternoon Gourley was fined $5 and costs and committed to the workhouse. He will leave in the morning with Buck Dobbins in charge of Officer Morris.

Thomas Daley, who was arrested Monday night for intoxication and fined yesterday morning, was released this morning on his promise to pay the amount of his indebtedness.

WAS TOP HEAVY

Intoxicated Man Sustained a Severe Cut as the Result of a Fall.

A tough looking local "bar-fly," with more whisky in his stomach than he evidently had money in his pockets, while attempting to cross the street at the corner of Fifth and Jackson, at noon today, staggered against the curb and fell on his head.

He sustained a severe gash above one of his eyes and was dazed for some time. The luckless fellow was picked up by comrades and taken away.

SLAUGHTERED RATS

Becoming So Numerous As to Be a Positive Nuisance—Protests Are Made.

The practice of killing rats in the streets and alleys of the city and leaving their carcasses to decay there is causing a great deal of talk in some quarters. It is claimed that traps containing as many as 15 rats are carried to the alleys and, after the rodents are dispatched with the aid of several dogs, the rats are left scattered about, and no effort made to cart the carcasses to the garbage furnace.

The health authorities cannot be expected to look after this matter, as the practice has become so general that the department might devote its entire time to the work without doing it justice. The practice is so annoying that a number of citizens will endeavor to have the health authorities stop it, and if that cannot be done, will try to get an ordinance through council covering the matter.

Board of Health Meeting.

A special meeting of the East Liverpool board of health will be held at city hall this evening, opening at 7 o'clock. Important sanitary questions will be up for discussion and action.

STRIKE OF PAINTERS

ENGAGED IN WORK AT THE LAUGHLIN NO. 2 PLANT.

Claim That a Frescoer Encroached. Compromise Is Probable.

The gang of painters employed at the Laughlin No. 2 pottery went on strike yesterday evening, because they claim that a frescoer has been encroaching upon work that belonged to them.

Purton & Jackson have the contract for painting the new addition recently erected at the plant, and a great deal of the work had already been done. The specifications called for an extra fine class of work upon the sample room. The company selected the room with especial care and propose to make it one of the most attractive to be found anywhere. The contractors engaged the Myers firm, of Steubenville, to do the frescoing in this particular room, and they had already begun preparing the walls and ceiling for the fine work when the dispute arose. The regular workmen claimed the painting of the ceiling, which is of iron, came under their jurisdiction and that part of the work belonged to them. They did not arrive at this conclusion, however, until the task had been almost completed by the frescoers. Yesterday they made known their kick to the contractors and not being favorably considered by them, all quit work.

The gang is still out today, but it is likely some sort of a compromise will be effected soon.

TEN LIVES LOST

IN ANOTHER CASUALTY AT CLEVELAND WATER WORKS.

Fire Destroys the Temporary Crib And At Least Ten Workmen Perished.

Cleveland, August 14.—(Special)—Fire which broke out this morning destroyed the temporary crib of the city water works.

Though no definite list of the casualties has been furnished, it is certain that 10 persons perished.

STRUCK ON THE HEAD

William Holt, a Kilndrawer at Knowles', Badly Hurt by a Falling Sagger.

William Holt, a kilndrawer at the old end of Knowles, Taylor & Knowles pottery, was badly injured at 7:30 this morning by being hit on the head by a falling sagger.

The young man was taken to his boarding house, 141 Avondale street, where the wound was dressed by a physician.

The cut was a bad one, requiring four stitches to close it. The sagger struck just above the right eye and the injury is a very painful one.

PETITION WITH 200 SIGNERS

Asking For Water Works and Lights in East End Acted on.

OLNHAUSEN ORDINANCE KILLED

Dr. Marshall Sprang a Surprise By Disputing Claims of East End Property Owners—Dry Run Bridge Proposition Up Again.

A somewhat lengthy session was held by council last night and an unusually large amount of business disposed of. Unlike the previous meeting of that body it was devoid of tiresome debates and wrangling, but on the contrary was conducted along equanimous lines and thoroughly business-like. Messrs. McLane and Heddleston were absent when Clerk Hanley called the roll, but Mr. Heddleston arrived later.

Two ordinances, one providing for the establishment of grade lines on Ogden street from Lincoln avenue to Peach street, and the other for the fixing of grade lines on Gardendale avenues were placed on third reading and passed.

A petition signed by about 200 residents from the upper section of the East End was read, asking that the city water mains be extended farther east and also that street lights be placed where needed. Dr. Marshall stated that the needs expressed in the petition were nothing more than the citizens of that district are entitled to. He made a motion, which received a second, that the water works trustees be asked to extend the city mains and also that the light committee be instructed to place the necessary street lamps in that section of the city. Bullock objected for the reason that the light committee had as yet failed to make provision for lights which had been ordered for other parts of the city.

Just as Mr. Bullock was about to enter his protest he was called to account for an oversight in neglecting to rise to his feet on being given the floor. President Nice admonished Mr. Bullock by saying: "Please stand while addressing the chair." The member did so and then registered his "kick." Mr. Marshall's motion carried, however, Mr. Bullock alone voting in the negative.

The ordinance providing for the granting of the right to George Olnhausen & Co. to lay water pipes in the suburbs of the city for spring water, which was at a previous meeting referred to the ordinance committee, was placed on final reading. Mr. Marshall protested against the passage of the ordinance, giving his reasons that it was taking an undue advantage of the city water works company for council to allow a competing company to lay pipes in the city. The ordinance was voted down.

Reports from the street commissioner, mayor and fire chief were then read. Mayor Davidson's report showed that $187.80 had been collected for fines and licenses. Fire Chief Morley's report was as follows: Fire calls, 6; patrol calls, 42; ambulance calls, 6; prisoners conveyed to city jail, 42.

An ordinance to fix the grade lines on Fox alley, in the East End, was introduced and referred to the ordinance committee, as was also an ordinance to establish grade lines on Hazel street.

A resolution was introduced providing for the construction of sidewalks on the north side of Sheridan avenue from Fenton to Chestnut street and on both sides of Pleasant street from Chestnut to Lisbon street. The property owners affected will be compelled to pay the cost of constructing the sidewalks, the resolution being introduced simply to induce the immediate beginning of the work. It was referred to the street committee.

A resolution was introduced instructing the solicitor to take necessary measures to procure a section of land at the intersection of Pennsylvania avenue and Robinson streets, in the East End, to make a suitable outlet for Pennsylvania avenue. Mr. Bullock, who had been appointed a member of

Many changes are to be made upon the East Liverpool bridge spanning the Ohio river between this city and will almost be rebuilt. Yesterday a reporter interviewed John Spivey, one of the chief toll keepers of the bridge,

who said:

Accused Drunk When the Constable Went After Him—Trial
Today.

At the time set last evening for the trial of Teddy Hickey, who was arrested at the instance of his son, who filed an affidavit for a peace warrant in Justice McLane's court, the accused failed to make his appearance. He had been released after his arrest on his promise to call at the justice's of-stable Powell went in search of the man.

Going to Hickey's home the officer
found him there, but he was then sleeping off a powerful "jag" and was not disturbed. This morning he was taken before the magistrate and admitted the charges made against him by his son.

Justice McLane bound the accused bond was furnished by Charles Hayden and Hickey released. He was soon at work at his old job on the streets.

DATES CONFLICT

Panhandle And M. P. Picnics Both Scheduled for Rock Springs Tomorrow.

Pastor W. H. Gladden, of the First
M. P. church, issued the following statement this morning:

"This (Wednesday) morning I have learned that there is to be a big railroad picnic run in on us tomorrow at Rock Springs park. Mr. Maxwell, the manager of the grounds, disclaims any responsibility, and tells us that an authority higher than himself peremptorily arranged for this Panhandle picnic for Rock Springs tomorrow.

in the week that I fear great confusion will ensue. It would hardly be desirable to take a Sunday school picnic into a crowd like that; besides,
we have invited other schools from a distance. Let all who are interested come without fail to the prayer meet-

Probable Enlargement of the Lythe Sewer Pipe Plant at Wellsville.

It is probable the Lythe sewer pipe works, located at Wellsville, which were sold to the American Sewer Pipe company some time ago, and at which the company will commence making fire brick soon, will be enlarged. During the past week civil engineers have been at work surveying the land about the plant, and, it is said, several new kilns are to be built.

T. F. Anderson, of the East End, who has charge of this works, said today that almost all the improvements
that were contemplated at these works
had been completed, and that the work of making brick would begin within one week.

No Meeting Probable.

Although the board of education should meet in regular session in the directors room in Central building next Monday evening, it is not likely that a meeting will be held. There is practically no business to be transacted by the board, and Secretary Walter
B. Hill is out of the city visiting relatives at Marquette, Mich. A meeting may not be held before his return.

A DIVORCE IS SOUGHT

By a Wellsville Man Who Charges His Wife With Immoral Conduct—Troubles of the Chamberlains to Be Taken to Common Pleas Court.

Lisbon, August 14. — (Special)— Judge Hole yesterday, in the case of John E. Evans, of Lisbon, against the German Insurance company, rendered a decision of interest to all property owners. Evans brought suit against the insurance company to recover $187 from loss by fire. The company answered that the insurance policy on the property had been rendered void previous to the fire, because the insured kept a can of gasoline in his dwelling. The terms of the policy were that no gasoline be kept on the insured premises, except what might be kept in the reservoir of a gasoline stove.

Judge Hole held that gasoline being in a can in the house would not render the policy void unless the fire was started by the gasoline.

sort in Wheeling. Campbell asks for the custody of his minor son George.

The ejectment suit of Celina Chamberlain against Jacob N. Chamberlain, into common pleas court on error.

Justice McKenzie decreed that the defendant should render possession of the farm occupied by him to Celina Chamberlain in September and that the defendant should pay the costs of the suit. Jacob Chamberlain claims that, since Celina was not entitled to the immediate possession of the farm, judgment should have been rendered in his favor and the costs taxed against the plaintiff.

The term of court adjourned yesterday.

Monday night for intoxication and fined yesterday morning, was released
this morning on his promise to pay

A tough looking local "bar-fly," with more whisky in his stomach than he

SLAUGHTERED RATS

Becoming So Numerous As to Be a Positive Nuisance—Protests
Are Made.

The practice of killing rats in the streets and alleys of the city and leaving their carcasses to decay there

LENGTHY SESSION HELD BY CITY'S LAW MAKERS

is causing a great deal of talk in some quarters. It is claimed that traps containing as many as 15 rats are carried to the alleys and, after the rodents are dispatched with the aid of several dogs, the rats are left scattered about,
and no effort made to cart the carcasses to the garbage furnace.

The health authorities cannot be expected to look after this matter, as the practice has become so general that the department might devote its entire time to the work without doing it justice. The practice is so annoying that a number of citizens will endeavor to have the health authorities
stop it, and if that cannot be done, will try to get an ordinance through council covering the matter.

Board of Health Meeting.

A special meeting of the East Liverpool board of health will be held at city hall this evening, opening at 7 o'clock. Important sanitary questions will be up for discussion and action.

ENGAGED IN WORK AT THE LAUGHLIN NO. 2 PLANT.

Claim That a Frescoer Encroached.
Compromise Is Probable.

The gang of painters employed at the Laughlin No. 2 pottery went on strike yesterday evening, because they claim that a frescoer has been encroaching upon work that belonged to them.

Purton & Jackson have the contract for painting the new addition recently erected at the plant, and a great deal of the work had already been done. The specifications called for an extra fine class of work upon the sample room. The company selected the room with especial care and propose to make it one of the most attractive to be found anywhere.
The contractors engaged the Myers firm, of Steubenville, to do the fres-coing in this particular room, and they had already begun preparing the walls and ceiling for the fine work when the dispute arose. The regular workmen claimed the painting of the ceiling, which is of iron, came under their jurisdiction and that part of the work belonged to them. They did not arrive at this conclusion, however, until the task had been almost completed by the frescoers. Yesterday they made known their kick to the contractors and not being favorably considered by them, all quit work.

The gang is still out today, but it is likely some sort of a compromise will be effected soon.

Falling Sagger.

William Holt, a kilndrawer at the old end of Knowles, Taylor & Knowles pottery, was badly injured at 7:30 this morning by being hit on the head by a falling sagger.

The young man was taken to his boarding house, 141 Avondale street, where the wound was dressed by a physician.

The cut was a bad one, requiring four stitches to close it. The sagger struck just above the right eye and the injury is a very painful one.

PETITION WITH 200 SIGNERS

Asking For Water Works and Lights in East End Acted on.

Dr. Marshall Sprang a Surprise By Disputing Claims of East End
Property Owners—Dry Run Bridge
Proposition Up Again.

A somewhat lengthy session was held by council last night and an unusually large amount of business disposed of. Unlike the previous meeting of that body it was devoid of tiresome debates and wrangling, but on the contrary was conducted along equani-mous lines and thoroughly business-like. Messrs. McLane and Heddlston were absent when Clerk Hanley called the roll, but Mr. Heddlston arrived later.

Two ordinances, one providing for the establishment of grade lines on Ogden street from Lincoln avenue to Peach street, and the other for the fixing of grade lines on Gardendale avenues were placed on third reading and passed.

A petition signed by about 200 residents from the upper section of the East End was read, asking that the city water mains be extended farther east and also that street lights be placed where needed. Dr. Marshall stated that the needs expressed in the petition were nothing more than the citizens of that district are entitled to. He made a motion, which received a second, that the water works trustees be asked to extend the city mains and also that the light committee be instructed to place the necessary street lamps in that section of the city. Bullock objected for the reason that the light committee had as yet failed to make provision for lights which had been ordered for other parts of the city.

Just as Mr. Bullock was about to enter his protest he was called to account for an oversight in neglecting to rise to his feet on being given the floor. President Nice admonished Mr.
Bullock by saying: "Please stand while addressing the chair." The member did so and then registered his
"kick." Mr. Marshall's motion carried, however, Mr. Bullock alone voting in the negative.

The ordinance providing for the granting of the right to George Oln-hausen & Co. to lay water pipes in the suburbs of the city for spring water, which was at a previous meeting referred to the ordinance committee, was placed on final reading. Mr. Marshall protested against the passage of the ordinance, giving his reasons that it was taking an undue advantage of the city water works company for council to allow a competing company to lay pipes in the city. The ordinance was voted down.

Reports from the street commissioner, mayor and fire chief were then read. Mayor Davidson's report showed that $187.80 had been collected for fines and licenses. Fire Chief Morley's report was as follows: Fire calls, 6; patrol calls, 42; ambulance calls, 6; prisoners conveyed to city jail, 42.

An ordinance to fix the grade lines on Fox alley, in the East End, was introduced and referred to the ordinance committee, as was also an ordinance to establish grade lines on Hazel street.

A resolution was introduced providing for the construction of sidewalks
on the north side of Sheridan avenue from Fenton to Chestnut street and on both sides of Pleasant street from Chestnut to Lisbon street. The property owners affected will be compelled to pay the cost of constructing the sidewalks, the resolution being introduced simply to induce the immediate beginning of the work. It was referred to the street committee.

A resolution was introduced instructing the solicitor to take necessary measures to procure a section of land
at the intersection of Pennsylvania avenue and Robinson streets, in the East End, to make a suitable outlet for Pennsylvania avenue. Mr. Bullock, who had been appointed a member of a committee to investigate the property in question, reported that the owner, John Thompson, was only able to grant the city a lease on it during his life, owing to a provision made in his father's will. It was decided that the city solicitor be instructed to institute condemnation proceedings and thus get possession of the land.

Clerk Hanley called council's attention to a bill of $56.75, which had been presented by the township trustees, which amount they claim is due them for a part of the cost of building a watering trough on Calcutta road. The account was disputed by the solons and the clerk was instructed to return the bill to the trustees for correction. Engineer Kelly recommended that $500 be advanced to Contractor James Rinehart on the Pleasant street improvement account and also $3,000 to Ryan & Rinehart on Trentvale street account. The bills were placed on the pay roll and the pay ordinance then passed.

Mr. Marshall called the attention of council to the need of making a change in the river road between Broadway and Ralston's crossing, and in a long speech explained wherein by making the change the traveling public would be benefited. It was his idea to take the matter before the street railway company, and, if possible, induce them to move their track to the inside of the road and thus do away with the zigzag course now traveled.

It was argued that not only would the danger to teams be thus lessened, but that the patrons of the street railway would appreciate the change. The solons agreed that Mr. Marshall's suggestion was a wise one, and a motion made by that gentleman asking that a committee be appointed to confer with the street railway company was carried. President Nice appointed Messrs. Marshall, Horwell and Orr to serve on the committee.

The committee appointed at a previous meeting to investigate the damage claim of George Shaw, who sustained a broken arm by reason of a fall on Sixth street caused by a stake which was left standing in the sidewalk, reported that an agreement had been reached with Mr. Shaw whereby he agreed to withdraw his damage suit and accept $150, the city paying the court costs already incurred and his doctor bill. This agreement was considered as being a very easy way to get out of the difficulty and the wise men voted unanimously to accept the proposition.

Bullock, chairman of the committee appointed to confer with property owners along Pennsylvania avenue in the East End who claim that the city took 15 feet from their lots to straighten a crooked section of the road, recommended that the ground be paid for and that $4 per foot be allowed for the unimproved portion and $5 for the improved.

According to the claims which have been laid before council, five lots opposite Columbian park were encroached on by the city. Solicitor Gaston stated that as the road when originally laid out at that point had been 60 feet wide, it must, therefore, now be 75 feet in width if it were certain that 15 additional feet had been taken off the five lots. He contended that it would be proper for the city to obtain possession of 15 feet of land on the opposite side now staked off by the owners of Columbian park.

Mr. Marshall sprang a big surprise by asserting that it was absurd to even entertain the idea of any of the property owners along Pennsylvania avenue having the least claim against the city. He explained that the original owners of the land, which the present owners now claim has been partially taken from them, donated it to the city and that every legal provision had been made for the building of the road just as it is at present.

T. F. Andrews, who was one of the gentlemen who gave the city the land in dispute, was present at the meeting and corroborated Mr. Marshall's statement. Engineer Kelly also made some explanations which put a new light on the matter. President Nice instructed the members of the committee originally appointed to investigate the claims of the owners of the property in controversy and to make another investigation and report at the next meeting.

A plat of lots submitted by Thomas Starkey of an addition to the city on Sheridan avenue was accepted. Another plat of lots owned by the Northside Land company was submitted and referred to the street committee.

On motion of Mr. Marshall the engineer was instructed to fix a grade on Laurel avenue in Bradshaw's addition.

Mr. Heddleston made a motion that the clerk be instructed to re-advertise for bids for the improvement of Bradshaw avenue. A communication from Priscilla Bradford, a resident of that thoroughfare, was read, which stated that she would agree to pay her share of the cost of the proposed improvement. Mr. Marshall spoke in favor of Mr. Heddleston's motion, and being seconded by Bullock, it carried.

Nice asked that council take some action regarding the repaving of Vine

street. On motion of Mr. Bullock the street committee and engineer were instructed to confer with the property owners of that street to determine the cost of the work.

Nice also wanted to know why the sewer ordered by council had not been built in Green lane. He stated that the sewer commissioners had been shamefully neglecting their duties and thought they should be given a "tearing out." Clerk Hanley informed the president that the terms of some of the members of the sewer commission had expired, which created no little surprise. Mayor Davidson was instructed to appoint new members to succeed those who have gone out of office. He agreed to submit the names of his appointees at the next meeting.

Fred Croxall, who resides on Fourth street, called council's attention to a leaking gas main on that thoroughfare. The clerk was instructed to notify the gas companies to repair the leak.

The clerk stated that a note in one of the banks for $3,000 was due and also said that to allow for the pay roll $8,000 was needed. The mayor and clerk were instructed to issue the city obligations for the amount.

Marshall brought up the Dry Run bridge proposition, which occupied the attention of the solons until the close of the session. Engineer Kelly, who had been instructed at a previous meeting to make an estimate of the cost of the contemplated work at that point, stated that he reckoned the cost for making a fill of 50 feet in width at about $3,500. Mr. Marshall stated that the fill would only be made 21 feet in width and that the street railway company had agreed to pay one-third of the cost, which would leave the city to pay only about $1,000.

The question of awarding the bids which have already been received was argued at length, but as they had never been advertised it was finally decided to advertise for new bids.

Engineer Kelly was granted a leave of absence for two weeks, after which the meeting adjourned.

POKER JOINT RAIDED

By the Brooke County Sheriff Causing Consternation Among Sports of Steubenville.

Steubenville, August 14.—The poker joint operated in a boat house at the foot of South street, this city, by Tom Ferris and others, was pulled by the sheriff of Brooke county, W. Va., and six deputies Monday night about 11 o'clock, and 15 men, white and colored, who were engaging in the fascinating game of cards, were placed under arrest.

The Brooke county sheriff and his deputies came on the 10:25 train and took the side streets to reach the boat house. On arriving there the place was found to be crowded, and the officers, going on board, surprised the game by ordering everybody to surrender. Three of the players made a dash for the outside by climbing through the windows of the boat, and their leader, a small, light athlete, went quickly through the window, jumped into the river, which came only to his knees, and landing on Ohio soil defied the Wellsburg sheriff to lay hands on him. The three made their escape in this manner, but ten others, including the proprietor, were taken prisoners and were taken to Wellsburg, where they will have a hearing.

The "pull" created consternation among the sports who make these river boats, which are under the jurisdiction of West Virginia, their headquarters. It is said the pull was the result of an affidavit made by a man who had lost a roll of money at the boat a few evenings since.

FIRST MEETING

Of the Newly Organized Columbiana County Republican Executive Committee.

Columbus, August 14.—State Treasurer I. B. Cameron will leave this evening for Lisbon, where he will attend the first meeting of the newly organized Republican executive committee, which will be in session Thursday morning to arrange the preliminary work of the coming campaign. Mr. Cameron is chairman of the committee. He will stay in Lisbon two days.

Conferring With Strikers.

East Palestine, August 14.—President Haskins and Secretary Savage, of the Mine Workers of America, are at East Palestine conferring with the striking miners. They will hold a number of meetings and will distribute funds. This will be the third installment of strike benefits.

Tunnels.

A New York newspaper remarks that "ferries came and ferries go, bridges rise and bridges fall, but tunnels last forever." There is a scientific truth in the observation. Of all works of man earthworks, plain earth mounds soddled over, are about the most enduring. A properly constructed tunnel is essentially a work in earth and so almost as permanent as the great globe itself.

EAST END SANITARY CONDITIONS

IN THE EAST END ARE REPORTED UNUSUALLY GOOD.

Officer Burgess Makes an Inspection of That District And Notes Improvements.

Sanitary Officer John Burgess was in the East End this morning, making an inspection of the alleys of that part of town. Mr. Burgess says the sanitary condition of the suburb was never better than at present. There is a noticeable absence of garbage in the several runs in that part of town. Last summer the runs were filled with refuse, and during the hot weather when the runs were dry, the odor that came from those places was appalling. Nothing of the kind exists in the suburb this year.

All the stagnant pools of water have been drained, and where pools of water were located last year, houses have been erected this season.

New Cars Coming.

Word has been received by the East Liverpool railway company that several of the new cars recently ordered have been completed, and that the entire order will be shipped soon. The cars will be much larger than those now in use.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

Arthur Mountford, of River avenue, today received a valuable fox terrier from a friend at Erie, Pa.

A force of railroad laborers this morning were put to work cleaning all the railroad property in the vicinity of the East End station or platform.

Eck Allison has disposed of his interest in the grocery store which he and Samuel Kerr operated to Mrs. Ira Clark. The sale was completed Monday evening.

Mrs. Lizzie A. Orr, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. T. F. Anderson, of the East End, for several months, returned to her home today.

Mr. Holmes, connected with the company presenting an attraction during the evenings at Columbian park, is ill with malaria. He will be able to be out within a few days.

The ladies' missionary society of the Second Presbyterian church will hold its regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon. This is the session that was to have been held last Thursday afternoon.

ASKED FOR AN INJUNCTION.

City of Pittsburg Takes Action In Court Against the Wabash Railroad.

Pittsburg, Aug. 14.—Assistant City Attorneys and James C. Gray and W. V. Smith appeared before Judge F. A. McClung in chambers of common pleas court No. 3 and asked for a preliminary injunction restraining the Pittsburg, Carnegie and Western Railroad company and Arthur McMullen, trading as Arthur McMullen & Co., from building a bridge over any portion of the Monongahela wharf. This is the first legal step taken by the city to prevent the Wabash railroad from entering the city.

Attorneys A. M. Neepfer and W. W. Ford appeared for the defendants and, after discussing the details of the matter, Mr. Neepfer agreed to allow no further work until he had time to file an answer to the suit brought by Director E. M. Bigelow. Mr. Neepfer decided that 48 hours would be sufficient time and asked that a hearing be granted by the court on Thursday. Judge McClung adjourned the hearing until the date asked for, with the understanding that if he was not in the city at that time the case would be taken up on Friday or Saturday.

In part it is charged that the defendants have not secured the consent of the city for such work, and it is charged that if the acts are permitted the wharf will be permanently encroached upon, and irreparable damage done the property of the plaintiff, public use of the wharf seriously interfered with, and that the city will be the loser to the amount of the tolls and fees collected for the use of the wharf.

Director E. M. Bigelow, director of the department of public works, swears to the affidavit of the bill. He also makes the injunction affidavit, setting forth the same matters as appear in the bill.

The following are resolutions adopted by the Republican association of the Thirty-second ward, at its last meeting.

"Resolved, That this association, recognizing the importance to the city's commercial interests by the entry into the same of the Wabash railroad, deprecates the action of our representatives on the councilmanic committee as well as the other members thereof in 'holding up' the franchise ordinance for the consummation of this great desideratum.

"Resolved, That we demand of council that they accord the Wabash Railroad company the legislative relief it requires, and if our representatives do not subscribe the public welfare in this matter, that we, as an organization, will use out utmost efforts to encompass their retirement from office."

The association also appointed a committee of three to wait upon Councilmen John Paul and Kirk Q. Bigham, present them with a copy of the resolutions and demand what they purposed doing regarding the subject.

CONTEST OVER DELEGATES,

From Philadelphia, Likely to Be the Principal Feature of Pennsylvania Democratic Convention.

Harrisburg, Aug. 14.—Chairman Creasy and his assistant were busy arranging the preliminaries for Thursday's Democratic state convention. The executive committee will meet today at noon to select temporary officers and in the evening a conference of the leaders will be held to prepare a platform. There is no contest for places on the state ticket, and the indications are that Judge Harman Yerkes, of Doylestown, will be the nominee for supreme court judge and Representative Andrew J. Palm, of Meadville, for state treasurer. The selection of a ticket is apparently a secondary consideration to the contest between the rival Philadelphia factions for seats as delegates. The city committee, of which ex-Governor Pattison has certified has a full list of delegates, whose seats are contested by the committee of which Magistrate Eisenbrown is the head. National Committeeman Guffy is anxious to restore harmony in the party in Philadelphia, and he will be here today to try to bring them together.

Ex-Judge David L. Krebs, of Clearfield, the leader of the opposition to the Donnelly-Ryan faction in Philadelphia, gave out a statement last night, stating that he was in favor of fusion between the independent Republicans on the state ticket. His idea is to nominate Judge Yerkes for supreme court judge, and endorse Representative E. A. Corey, Jr., of Luzerne, for state treasurer. Messrs. Donnelly, Ryan and Pattison and their friends will be here to force today.

ITO COMING TO AMERICA.

Foremost Japanese Statesmen Will Again Travel to the West to Benefit His Health.

YOKOHAMA, Aug. 14.—Marquis Ito Japan's leading statesman, will go to America shortly. He has been in ill health for some time and the doctors ordered him to take a long sea voyage. He has chosen the Western route.

Count Ito was born in the province of Choshi in 1863. A secret journey to Europe convinced him of the superiority of western civilization, and since that time he has been one of the leaders in westernizing his native land. In 1871 he visited the United States to investigate the college system, and upon his return to Japan he assisted in establishing the mint at Osaka. On a second trip to Europe, in 1880, he was favorably impressed with the German methods of government, and his attempts to introduce them into his own country have given him the name of the Japanese Bismarck. In 1886 he assumed the leading place in the Japanese cabinet, and under the title of minister president of state, instituted sweeping economical reforms, and during the next two years everything was done to make Japan the Asiatic counterpart of the German empire. A reaction in 1888 resulted in his retirement from the premiership, to which, however, he was recalled in 1892. In the war with China in 1894-1895, he played a leading part, being premier of the empire, and high admiral of the Japanese fleet. In recognition of his services he was made a marquis. An unsuccessful attempt to assassinate him was made in 1895. He retired to private life in August, 1896, but had since been called upon to straighten out the Government tangles and form new ministries.

a committee to investigate the property in question, reported that the owner, John Thompson, was only able to grant the city a lease on it during his life, owing to a provision made in his father's will. It was decided that the city solicitor be instructed to institute condemnation proceedings and thus get possession of the land.

Clerk Hanley called council's attention to a bill of $56.75, which had been presented by the township trustees, which amount they claim is due them for a part of the cost of building a watering trough on Calcutta road. The account was disputed by the solons and the clerk was instructed to return the bill to the trustees for correction. Engineer Kelly recommended that $500 be advanced to Contractor James Rinehart on the Pleasant street improvement account and also $3,000 to Ryan & Rinehart on Trentvale street account. The bills were placed on the pay roll and the pay ordinance then passed.

Mr. Marshall called the attention of council to the need of making a change in the river road between Broadway and Ralston's crossing, and in a long speech explained wherein by making the change the traveling public would be benefited. It was his idea to take the matter before the street railway company, and, if possible, induce them to move their track to the inside of the road and thus do away with the zigzag course now traveled.

It was argued that not only would the danger to teams be thus lessened, but that the patrons of the street railway would appreciate the change. The solons agreed that Mr. Marshall's suggestion was a wise one, and a motion made by that gentleman asking that a committee be appointed to confer with the street railway company was carried. President Nice appointed Messrs. Marshall, Horwell and Orr to serve on the committee.

The committee appointed at a previous meeting to investigate the damage claim of George Shaw, who sustained a broken arm by reason of a fall on Sixth street caused by a stake which was left standing in the sidewalk, reported that an agreement had been reached with Mr. Shaw whereby he agreed to withdraw his damage suit and accept $150, the city paying the court costs already incurred and his doctor bill. This agreement was considered as being a very easy way to get out of the difficulty and the wise men voted unanimously to accept the proposition.

Bullock, chairman of the committee appointed to confer with property owners along Pennsylvania avenue in the East End who claim that the city took 15 feet from their lots to straighten a crooked section of the road, recommended that the ground be paid for and that $4 per foot be allowed for the unimproved portion and $5 for the improved.

According to the claims which have been laid before council, five lots opposite Columbian park were encroached on by the city. Solicitor Gaston stated that as the road when originally laid out at that point had been 60 feet wide, it must, therefore, now be 75 feet in width if it were certain that 15 additional feet had been taken off the five lots. He contended that it would be proper for the city to obtain possession of 15 feet of land on the opposite side now staked off by the owners of Columbian park.

Mr. Marshall sprang a big surprise by asserting that it was absurd to even entertain the idea of any of the property owners along Pennsylvania avenue having the least claim against the city. He explained that the original owners of the land, which the present owners now claim has been partially taken from them, donated it to the city and that every legal provision had been made for the building of the road just as it is at present.

T. F. Andrews, who was one of the gentlemen who gave the city the land in dispute, was present at the meeting and corroborated Mr. Marshall's statement. Engineer Kelly also made some explanations which put a new light on the matter. President Nice instructed the members of the committee originally appointed to investigate the claims of the owners of the property in controversy and to make another investigation and report at the next meeting.

A plat of lots submitted by Thomas Starkey of an addition to the city on Sheridan avenue was accepted. Another plat of lots owned by the Northside Land company was submitted and referred to the street committee.

On motion of Mr. Marshall the engineer was instructed to fix a grade on Laurel avenue in Bradshaw's addition.

Mr. Heddeleston made a motion that the clerk be instructed to re-advertise for bids for the improvement of Bradshaw avenue. A communication from Priscilla Bradford, a resident of that thoroughfare, was read, which stated that she would agree to pay her share of the cost of the proposed improvement. Mr. Marshall spoke in favor of Mr. Heddeleston's motion, and being seconded by Bullock, it carried.

Nice asked that council take some action regarding the repaving of Vine

street. On motion of Mr. Bullock the street committee and engineer were instructed to confer with the property owners of that street to determine the cost of the work.

Nice also wanted to know why the sewer ordered by council had not been built in Green lane. He stated that the sewer commissioners had been shamefully neglecting their duties and thought they should be given a "tearing out." Clerk Hanley informed the president that the terms of some of the members of the sewer commission had expired, which created no little surprise. Mayor Davidson was instructed to appoint new members to succeed those who have gone out of office. He agreed to submit the names of his appointees at the next meeting.

Fred Croxall, who resides on Fourth street, called council's attention to a leaking gas main on that thoroughfare. The clerk was instructed to notify the gas companies to repair the leak.

The clerk stated that a note in one of the banks for $3,000 was due and also said that to allow for the pay roll $8,000 was needed. The mayor and clerk were instructed to issue the city obligations for the amount.

Marshall brought up the Dry Run bridge proposition, which occupied the attention of the solons until the close of the session. Engineer Kelly, who had been instructed at a previous meeting to make an estimate of the cost of the contemplated work at that point, stated that he reckoned the cost for making a fill of 50 feet in width at about $3,500. Mr. Marshall stated that the fill would only be made 21 feet in width and that the street railway company had agreed to pay one-third of the cost, which would leave the city to pay only about $1,000.

The question of awarding the bids which have already been received was argued at length, but as they had never been advertised it was finally decided to advertise for new bids.

Engineer Kelly was granted a leave of absence for two weeks, after which the meeting adjourned.

POKER JOINT RAIDED

By the Brooke County Sheriff Causing Consternation Among Sports of Steubenville.

Steubenville, August 14.—The poker joint operated in a boat house at the foot of South street, this city, by Tom Ferries and others, was pulled by the sheriff of Brooke county, W. Va., and six deputies Monday night about 11 o'clock, and 15 men, white and colored, who were engaging in the fascinating game of cards, were placed under arrest.

The Brooke county sheriff and his deputies came on the 10:25 train and took the side streets to reach the boat house. On arriving there the place was found to be crowded, and the officers, going on board, surprised the game by ordering everybody to surrender. Three of the players made a dash for the outside by climbing through the windows of the boat, and their leader, a small, light athlete, went quickly through the window, jumped into the river, which came only to his knees, and landing on Ohio soil defied the Wellsburg sheriff to lay hands on him. The three made their escape in this manner, but ten others, including the proprietor, were made prisoners and were taken to Wellsburg, where they will have a hearing.

The "pull" created consternation among the sports who make these river boats, which are under the jurisdiction of West Virginia, their headquarters. It is said the pull was the result of an affidavit made by a man who had lost a roll of money at the boat a few evenings since.

Tunnels.

A New York newspaper remarks that "ferries came and ferries go, bridges rise and bridges fall, but tunnels last forever." There is a scientific truth in the observation. Of all works of man earthworks, plain earth mounds soddled over, are about the most enduring. A properly constructed tunnel is essentially a work in earth and so almost as permanent as the great globe itself.

EAST END

SANITARY CONDITIONS

IN THE EAST END ARE REPORTED UNUSUALLY GOOD.

Sanitary Officer John Burgess was in the East End this morning, making an inspection of the alleys of that part of town. Mr. Burgess says the sanitary condition of the suburb was never better than at present. There is a noticeable absence of garbage in the several runs in that part of town. Last summer the runs were filled with refuse, and during the hot weather when the runs were dry, the odor that came from those places was appalling. Nothing of the kind exists in the suburb this year.

All the stagnant pools of water have been drained, and where pools of water were located last year, houses have been erected this season.

New Cars Coming.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

Arthur Mountford, of River avenue, today received a valuable fox terrier from a friend at Erie, Pa.

A force of railroad laborers this morning were put to work cleaning all the railroad property in the vicinity of the East End station or platform.

Eck Allison has disposed of his interest in the grocery store which he and Samuel Kerr operated to Mrs. Ira Clark. The sale was completed Monday evening.

Mrs. Lizzie A. Orr, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. T. F. Anderson, of the East End, for several months, returned to her home today.

Mr. Holmes, connected with the company presenting an attraction during the evenings at Columbian park, is ill with malaria. He will be able to be out within a few days.

The ladies' missionary society of the Second Presbyterian church will hold its regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon. This is the session that was to have been held last Thursday afternoon.

ASKED FOR AN INJUNCTION.

City of Pittsburgh Takes Action in Court Against the Wabash Railroad.

Pittsburg, Aug. 14.—Assistant City Attorneys and James C. Gray and W. V. Smith appeared before Judge S. A. McClung in chambers of common pleas court No. 3 and asked for a preliminary injunction restraining the Pittsburgh, Carnegie and Western Railroad company and Arthur McMullen, trading as Arthur McMullen & Co., from building a bridge over any portion of the Monongahela wharf. This is the first legal step taken by the city to prevent the Wabash railroad from entering the city.

Attorneys A. M. Neep and W. W. Ford appeared for the defendants and, after discussing the details of the matter, Mr. Neep agreed to allow no further work until he had time to file an answer to the suit brought by Director E. M. Bigelow. Mr. Neep decided that 48 hours would be sufficient time and asked that a hearing be granted by the court on Thursday. Judge McClung adjourned the hearing until the date asked for, with the understanding that if he was not in the city at that time the case would be taken up on Friday or Saturday.

In part it is charged that the defendants have not secured the consent of the city for such work, and it is charged that if the acts are permitted the wharf will be permanently encroached upon, and irreparable damage done the property of the plaintiff, public use of the wharf seriously interfered with, and that the city will be the loser to the amount of the tolls and fees collected for the use of the wharf.

Director E. M. Bigelow, director of the department of public works, swears to the affidavit of the bill. He also makes the injunction affidavit, setting forth the same matters as appear in the bill.

The following are resolutions adopted by the Republican association of the Thirty-second ward, at its last meeting.

"Resolved, That this association, recognizing the importance to the city's commercial interests by the entry into the same of the Wabash railroad, deprecates the action of our representatives on the councilmanic committee as well as the other members thereof in 'holding up' the franchise ordinance for the consummation of this great desideratum.

"Resolved, That we demand of council that they accord the Wabash Railroad company the legislative relief it requires, and if our representatives do not subserve the public welfare in this matter, that we, as an organization, will use out utmost efforts to encompass their retirement from office.

The association also appointed a committee of three to wait upon Councilmen John Paul and Kirk Q. Bigelow, present them with a copy of the resolutions and demand what they purposed doing regarding the subject.

CONTEST OVER DELEGATES,

From Philadelphia, Likely to Be the Principal Feature of Pennsylvania Democratic Convention.

Harrisburg, Aug. 14.—Chairman Creasy and his assistant were busy arranging the preliminaries for Thursday's Democratic state convention. The executive committee will meet today at noon to select temporary officers and in the evening a conference of the leaders will be held to prepare a platform. There is no contest for places on the state ticket, and the indications are that Judge Harman Yerkes, of Doylestown, will be the nominee for supreme court judge and Representative Andrew J. Palm, of Meadville, for state treasurer. The selection of a ticket is apparently a secondary consideration to the contest between the rival Philadelphia factions for seats as delegates. The city committee, of which ex-Governor Patison has certified a full list of delegates, whose seats are contested by the committee of which Magistrate Eisenbrown is the head. National Committeeman Guffey is anxious to restore harmony in the party in Philadelphia, and he will be here today to try to bring them together.

Ex-Judge David L. Krebs, of Clearfield, the leader of the opposition to the Donnelly-Ryan faction in Philadelphia, gave out a statement last night, stating that he was in favor of fusion between the independent Republicans on the state ticket. His idea is to nominate Judge Yerkes for supreme court judge, and endorse Representative E. A. Corey, Jr., of Luzerne, for state treasurer. Messrs. Donnelly, Ryan and Pattison and their friends will be here to force today.

ITO COMING TO AMERICA.

YOKOHAMA, Aug. 14.—Marquis Ito Japan's leading statesman, will go to America shortly. He has been in ill health for some time and the doctors ordered him to take a long sea voyage. He has chosen the Western route.

Count Ito was born in the province of Chosui in 1840. A secret journey to Europe convinced him of the superiority of western civilization, and since that time he has been one of the leaders in westernizing his native land. In 1871 he visited the United States to investigate the college system, and upon his return to Japan he assisted in establishing the ministry of education. In 1880, he was second trip to Europe, in 1880, he was favorably impressed with the German methods of government, and his attempts to introduce them into his own country have given him the name of the Japanese Bismarck. In 1886 he assumed the leading place in the Japanese cabinet, and under the title of minister president of state, instituted sweeping economical reforms, and during the next two years everything was done to make Japan the Asiatic counterpart of the German empire. A reaction in 1888 resulted in Ito's retirement from the premiership, which, however, he was recalled in 1892. In the war with China in 1894-1895, he played a leading part, being premier of the empire, and high admiral of the Japanese fleet. In recognition of his services he was made a marquis. An unsuccessful attempt to assassinate him was made in 1895. He retired to private life in August, 1896, but had since been called upon to straighten out the Government tangles and form new ministries.

PLANT TO BE MOVED.

Order Issued For Transferring Mill From Carnegie to Leechburg Pa.

STRIKERS WERE FIRST WARNED.

Failed to Heed—Ground Selected For Moving of a Plant From Warren, O., to Youngstown, If Men Do Not Return to Work.

Pittsburg, O. Aug. 14.—According to an authoritative announcement made to a representative of the Associated Press by officials of the American Sheet Steel company the destruction of another plant has been ordered by the steel corporation as a result of the refusal of the men to operate it. This time it is the Chartiers plant at Carnegie that is to be dismantled. It is owned by the American Sheet Steel company and the order to tear it down went out Tuesday. It will be removed to Leechburg, in the Kiskiminetas valley. The strikers were called together Monday by Superintendent John Henry and preliminary notice of the company's plan served on them. Eighty strikers responded and Mr. Henry told them that the fires would be lighted and all preparations made for a start Tuesday. He said that at 2 o'clock the whistle would be blown and if the men failed to respond the fires would never be relighted. The program as outlined was carried out, but when the whistle sounded the men did not respond. The fires were at once drawn and the order to dismantle and remove the mills was given. The officials of the company said that the plant would be down and moved within two weeks.

Youngstown, O., Aug. 14.—Arrangements are being made in event the American Steel Hoop company abandons its plant at Warren, to move it to this city, in accordance with the policy of the company to centralize its plants. A site for the mill has been selected. The steel hoop mill at Girard will not be moved, as new machinery is being installed there.

TREAT STATEMENT LIGHTLY.

Connellsville Strikers Think Plant Will Not Be Moved.

CONNELLVILLE, Pa., Aug. 14.—Striking employees of the Humbert plant of the American Tin Plate Company treat lightly the statement made by Warner Ames, of the American Tin Plate Company, to George J. Humbert, founder of the Humbert plant. The statement published yesterday says that an effort will be made to start the mill in order to sound the feelings of the public here, and if there is opposition the mill will be removed. Members of Cambria lodge, A. A. of I. S. & T. W., have been discussing the matter generally on the streets today. Regarding the threat President T. J. Collins, of the local lodge, said: "We think that statement is a big bluff." No meeting of Cambria lodge will be held unless there is something more definite heard regarding an effort to start the mill non-union. The members of Cambria lodge to a man say they will stick together and that they will not return to their places until the mills are started union.

WILL EXERT EVERY EFFORT.

Leechburg Board of Trade Wants Dewees Wood Mill.

LEECHBURG, Pa., Aug. 14.—The directors of the board of trade held a meeting this afternoon to talk over matters pertaining to the removal of the Dewees Wood mill from McKeesport. After a good deal of talk, it was decided to be advisable to exert every effort to have the mills locate here, and resolutions to that effect were passed. Since the first of this year this board of trade has been instrumental in having the Pittsburgh Shovel works located here, also the Walker Brush Company and the Ewarts plant, which manufactures a machine for making packing boxes.

Everything about the mills, both here and Vandergrift, has been very quiet today. The men are at work, and from outward appearances, any trouble in labor circles would be the last thing thought of in this section.

SHARON MEN WILL WORK.

Feeling of Good Will Between Them and Employers.

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 14.—Not one of Sharon's industries has been forced to close by reason of President Shaffer's strike order, and in all probability they will continue in operation without interruption. The men are satisfied with existing conditions, and the feeling between them and the companies is harmonious. While the men at the different concerns do not favor coming out on a sympathetic strike, they will probably contribute a per cent of their wages to assist the strikers in their fight against the combine.

POPULATION OF FRANCE.

Increase of Nearly Half a Million in Five Years.

PARIS, Aug. 14.—The official final census returns show the population of France to be 38,641,333, an increase in the last five years of 412,354. The increase is mainly in urban centers. Twenty-eight departments show an increase and 39 a decrease. The census figures include the troops in China and the sailors of the navy and merchant marine absent from France March 24.

KINGS AS MOURNERS.

William and Edward Followed Empress' Body to the Grave.

AMBASSADOR WHITE PRESENT.

He Marched in the Parade—Protestant and Catholic Ministers in the Solemn Procession—Prayer Followed Lowering of the Remains.

Potsdam, Aug. 14.—The remains of the Dowager Empress Frederick were interred beside those of her husband in the mausoleum of Friedenskirche, near Potsdam.

Promptly at 10:30 Tuesday the tolling of bells announced the arrival of the funeral train at Wild Park, but it was nearly 11 o'clock when the sound of music in the distance announced the approach of the funeral procession.

As the procession drew near the notes of the best known funeral marches, played slowly and plaintively, became audible, the muffled drums rolling in solemn impressiveness.

At the head of the procession rode Major General Von Moltke, nephew of the famous field marshal, in command of the military forces participating in the ceremonies.

The procession was in every way grand and solemn. The Gardes Du Corps, with black and white pennants fluttering at their lance points, attracted much attention, as did the Royal Page Corps, composed of cadets from the military academy at Gross-Lichterfelde.

After the military came the highest clerical dignitaries of Berlin, including Dr. Dryander, the court preacher, and Bishop Aszmann, the highest Catholic military chaplain, in a resplendent purple robe.

Over the head of the coffin were the imperial colors, on which was a crown of state of massive gold and heavily jeweled. Also on the colors was a wreath, deposited there by Emperor William at Cronberg, and two other wreaths.

Behind the coffin marched the emperor, with head erect and displaying the greatest self-possession and dignity, but his face was pale and sorrowful and he gazed straight forward in a serious manner. King Edward, who was on the emperor's left, walked heavily and evidently found the march fatiguing.

Ambassador White walked with the Italian ambassador with bowed head, and bowed to journalistic acquaintances in the crowd.

The procession occupied 20 minutes

in passing. All the bells of Potsdam continued tolling till the procession had reached the mausoleum and during the obsequies.

The procession reached the mausoleum at 11:40. The proceedings there were almost simple. The coffin was carried into the mausoleum, followed by the emperor and empress, King Edward and Queen Alexandra, the royal princes and other members of royal families, the rest of those present remaining outside during the last ceremonies.

After the body had been lowered into the vault the choir from the Berlin cathedral sang "Christ Is the Resurrection," by Grell. A prayer followed and then the choir sang "Be Faithful Unto Death," by Neidhart. This was the only service.

In the meanwhile the emperor stood beside the tomb in a most solemn manner. There was no weeping, but King Edward frequently used his handkerchief, for beads of perspiration were coursing down his brow.

After the brief ceremony the royal party withdrew and the invited guest, military men, diplomats, statesmen, etc., filed in for the last hasty view of the coffin.

Salineville Odd Fellows will picnic at Idora park, Youngstown, on August 31.

The New Waterford town council defeated an ordinance to prevent gambling.

Dr. A. E. Winship, of Boston, is a speaker at the teachers' institute which opened at Toronto Monday.

Howard Liber, of Salem, an operator for the United States signal corps in Porto Rico, is at home on a vacation.

Experts report that Henry J. McCrum, missing treasurer of the Akron Varnish company, was short in his accounts $29,000.

Judge Wood has appointed J. H. Laing receiver for the Webster Oil company of Marietta on application of the stockholders. Indebtedness $68,000.

Mrs. Anna Brown, of Braceville, has sued John Kelley, of that place, for $1 damage for breach of promise, he having married Mrs. Millie Peebles instead.

Harvey Smith, of Pittsburg, is laid up at New Castle, Pa., with a broken arm and other injuries received while walking out a second story window in his sleep.

Mrs. John Pearson, of Girard, O., tried to drown herself and after knocking down several boys who attempted to restrain her, was taken home by her husband, whom she accuses of cruel treatment.

David Parks, a law student, unfolded to William Smith, an Akron saloon keeper, in the latter's cellar, a plan to rob an aged blacksmith at Bolivar, O., and secure $1,000. Detective Charles Dierler, who had been concealed, stepped out and arrested the young man.

A Severe Attack of Diarrhoea Cured.

People are fast learning that there is but one remedy that can always be relied upon to cure diarrhoea. In speaking of the remedy E. F. Glover, a merchant of Evergreen, Va., says: "Last summer one of my customers, who was a fireman on the Norfolk & Western railway, had so severe an attack of diarrhoea that he had to leave his work. He had employed several physicians and got no relief. I sold him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and a day or two after he reported to me that he was entirely cured. PLANT TO BE MOVED.

Order Issued For Transferring Mill From Carnegie to Leechburg Pa.

STRIKERS WERE FIRST WARNED.

Failed to Heed—Ground Selected For Moving of a Plant From Warren, O., to Youngstown, If Men Do Not Return to Work.

Pittsburg, Aug. 14.—According to an authoritative announcement made to a representative of the Associated Press by officials of the American Sheet Steel company the destruction of another plant has been ordered by the steel corporation as a result of the refusal of the men to operate it. This time it is the Chartiers plant at Carnegie that is to be dismantled. It is owned by the American Sheet Steel company and the order to tear it down went out Tuesday. It will be removed to Leechburg, in the Kiskiminetas valley. The strikers were called together Monday by Superintendent John Henry and preliminary notice of the company's plan served on them. Eighty strikers responded and Mr. Henry told them that the fires would be lighted and all preparations made for a start Tuesday. He said that at 2 o'clock the whistle would be blown and if the men failed to respond the fires would never be relighted. The program as outlined was carried out, but when the whistle sounded the men did not respond. The fires were at once drawn and the order to dismantle and remove the mills was given. The officials of the company said that the plant would be down and moved within two weeks.

Youngstown, O., Aug. 14.—Arrangements are being made in event the American Steel Hoop company abandons its plant at Warren, to move it to this city, in accordance with the policy of the company to centralize its plants. A site for the mill has been selected. The steel hoop mill at Girard will not be moved, as new machinery is being installed there.

TREAT STATEMENT LIGHTLY.

Connellsville Strikers Think Plant
Will Not Be Moved.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 14.—Striking employees of the Humbert plant of the American Tin Plate Company treat lightly the statement made by Warner Ames, of the American Tin Plate Company, to George J. Humbert, founder of the Humbert plant. The statement published yesterday says that an effort will be made to start the mill in order to sound the feelings of the public here, and if there is opposition the mill will be removed. Members of Cambria lodge, A. A. of L. S. & T. W., have been discussing the matter generally on the streets to-day.

day. Regarding the threat President T. J. Collins, of the local lodge, said: "We think that statement is a big bluff." No meeting of Cambria lodge will be held unless there is something more definite heard regarding an effort to start the mill non-union. The members of Cambria lodge to a man say they will stick together and that they will not return to their places until the mills are started union.

WILL EXERT EVERY EFFORT.

Leechburg Board of Trade Wants Dewees Wood Mill.

LEECHBURG, Pa., Aug. 14.—The directors of the board of trade held a meeting this afternoon to talk over matters pertaining to the removal of the Dewees Wood mill from McKeesport. After a good deal of talk, it was decided to be advisable to exert every effort to have the mills locate here, and resolutions to that effect were passed. Since the first of this year this board of trade has been instrumental in having the Pittsburg Shovel works located here, also the Walker Brush Company and the Ewatts plant, which manufactures a machine for making packing boxes. Everything about the mills, both here and Vandergrift, has been very quiet to-day. The men are at work, and from outward appearances, any trouble in labor circles would be the last thing thought of in this section.

SHARON MEN WILL WORK.

Feeling of Good Will Between Them and Employers.

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 14.—Not one of Sharon's industries has been forced to close by reason of President Shaffer's strike order, and in all probability they will continue operation without interruption. The men are satisfied with existing conditions, and the feeling between them and the companies is harmonious. While the men at the different concerns do not favor coming out on a sympathetic strike, they will probably contribute a per cent of their wages to assist the strikers in their fight against the combine.

POPULATION OF FRANCE.

Increase of Nearly Half a Million in PARIS, Aug. 14.—The official final census returns show the population of France to be 38,641,333, an increase in the last five years of 42,364. The increase is mainly in urban centers. Twenty-eight departments show an increase and 59 a decrease. The census figures include the troops in China and the sailors of the navy and merchant marine absent from France March 21.

AMBASSADOR WHITE PRESENT.

He Marched In the Parade—Protestant and Catholic Ministers In the Solemn Procession—Prayer Followed Lowering of the Remains.

Potsdam, Aug. 14.—The remains of the Dowager Empress Frederick were interred beside those of her husband in the mausoleum of Friedenskirche, near Potsdam.

Promptly at 10:30 Tuesday the tolling of bells announced the arrival of the funeral train at Wild Park, but it was nearly 11 o'clock when the sound of music in the distance announced the approach of the funeral procession.

As the procession drew near the notes of the best known funeral marches, played slowly and plaintively, became audible, the muffled drums rolling in solemn impressiveness.

At the head of the procession rode Major General Von Moltke, nephew of the famous field marshal, in command of the military forces participating in the ceremonies.

The procession was in every way grand and solemn. The Garde du Corps, with black and white pennants fluttering at their lance points, attracted much attention, as did the Royal Page Corps, composed of cadets from the military academy at Gross-Lichterfelde.

After the military came the highest clerical dignitaries of Berlin, including Dr. Dryander, the court preacher, and Bishop Aszmann, the highest Catholic military chaplain, in a resplendent purple robe.

Over the head of the coffin were the imperial colors, on which was a crown of state of massive gold and heavily jeweled. Also on the colors was a wreath, deposited there by Emperor William at Cronberg, and two other wreaths.

Behind the coffin marched the emperor, with head erect and displaying the greatest self-possession and dignity, but his face was pale and sorrowful and he gazed straight forward in a serious manner. King Edward, who was on the emperor's left, walked heavily and evidently found the march fatiguing.

Both Emperor William and King Edward wore the uniform of the Second regiment of dragoon guards, Queen Victoria's regiment.

Ambassador White walked with the Italian ambassador with bared head, and bowed to journalistic acquaintances in the crowd.

The procession occupied 20 minutes

in passing. All the bells of Potsdam continued tolling till the procession had reached the mausoleum and during the obsequies.

The procession reached the mausoleum at 11:40. The proceedings there were almost simple. The coffin was carried into the mausoleum, followed by the emperor and empress, King Edward and Queen Alexandra, the royal princes and other members of royal families, the rest of those present remaining outside during the last ceremonies.

After the body had been lowered into the vault the choir from the Berlin cathedral sang "Christ Is the Resurrection" by Grell. A prayer followed and then the choir sang "Be Faithful Unto Death," by Neidhart. This was the only service.

In the meanwhile the emperor stood beside the tomb in a most solemn manner. There was no weeping, but King Edward frequently used his handkerchief, for beads of perspiration were coursing down his brow.

After the brief ceremony the royal party withdrew and the invited guest, military men, diplomats, statesmen, etc., filed in for the last hasty view of the coffin.

The royal party left the park at 12:25 p. m. In the first carriage was Queen Alexandra, on the right, and the empress on the left. The second carriage contained King Edward on the right and Emperor William on the left. Numerous court carriages bore away the invited guests and dignitaries to their homes or to the railroad and the crowds rapidly dispersed.

TARIFF REVISION.

The question of tariff revision is
to come before the next congress, and
much pressure will undoubtedly be brought to bear upon that body in favor of a number of changes in the schedule now in force. There is a wide difference of opinion, even among Republicans who have always stood as champions of protection, as to the wisdom of such procedure and the necessity for it. It is contended that
the Dingley bill contains inequalities
and that injustice to certain interests
is wrought in consequence. But conservative men will be slow to encourage any radical changes.

No one contends that the Dingley
bill is perfect, or that the nation has
ever had a tariff law that was perfect.
But tested by results, it comes nearer
fulfilling all requirements than any of its predecessors. Unquestionably it has been one of the chief factors in bringing about the present unparalleled prosperity, which extends to every section of the country. It has been tried and has not been found wanting.
Why, then, should an attempt be made
to interfere with its workings? The country has had too many sorrowful
examples of the effect of tariff tinkering. The tinkers, once started,
never know where or when to stop.
The result is that business currents
are interrupted, capitalists hesitate to
make investments and industry is stopped or checked, while uncertainty
prevails.

It is a condition and not a theory
which confronts us. That condition is genuine and abounding prosperity.
Let it alone. The Dingley tariff has been in force only a few years. It has been successful as a revenue producer,
successful in stimulating every branch
of industry. Time enough to cast it
aside when it has outgrown its usefulness. That time has not arrived,
and it would be folly for a Republican
congress to follow in Democratic footsteps and strike a blow at industrial
life. That would not be the intention,
but it would be the effect of an attempt to overhaul the tariff system.

A NEGLECTED LAW.

There is, on the statute books of Ohio, the following law:
"That whoever sells, gives or furnishes to any minor under 16 years
of age any cigarette, cigarette wrap-
per, or any cigar or tobacco, upon
conviction thereof shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or imprisoned not less than two nor more than thirty days, or both, for the first offense, and fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars and imprisoned not less than five

nor more than sixty days for the second or any subsequent offense."

It is a wise and proper law. It is not enforced in East Liverpool, and arrests and convictions under it are rare in other cities. Yet everybody
admits that the cigarette is an evil
and should be suppressed. Why not invoke the law's aid in fighting it?

AN ENCOURAGING OUTLOOK.

Frederick W. Hollis, the American
member of the international court of arbitration at The Hague, is not one
of those who consider that tribunal a
useless one. He has had an opportunity of talking with leading statesmen, foreign ministers and influential public men in Europe. Prior to his departure from London for this country he said in an interview:

"From all we have heard we believe that the outlook for peace among the
great powers and for gradual but unmistakable development of the intent
of the peace conference could hardly
be better. No European people wants any more than the Americans. Notwithstanding all appearances to the contrary, public opinion is today the greatest European power. It would be folly to say there is no longer danger of war, for popular excitement in any one quarter may upset
all calculations. Still the existence of a permanent tribunal to decide international disputes, the well-recognized
economic break-down which war now
means for all belligerents, the lessons
of the Boer war and the frightful
fiasco in China, are all working powerfully for peace."

Jerry Simpson is not a millionaire
yet, but he "as 'opes." He is now worth $100,000, wears socks, and has
ceased to worry about the perils
threatened by plutocracy. Prosperity is a powerful antidote to Popu-
lism.

State Senator Barksdale, temporary chairman of the Virginia Democratic convention, bids farewell to Bryan in a eulogy which reads suspiciously like an obituary notice.

Virginia has a society for the suppression of spurious titles. It will not prosper in a region where colonels
by courtesy are so numerous.

Carrie Nation is apparently trying
her best to get herself arrested again.

Ingenious St. Louisian Invents a Lav-
atory on Wheels.

A street car Turkish bath establishment is the newest thing in St. Louis,
says the Chicago Record-Herald. It has been constructed to meet the pressing
twentieth century demand for a time
saver.

Herman Elegen of St. Louis conceived
this novel idea, and he has constructed the first Turkish bathhouse
that ever stood on wheels. Run on the streets like a mail or express car, the Turkish bath car, the inventor believes,
would save the busy man's time and be
the balm of life to the henpecked round-
er. The man of affairs could leave Union station in a Turkish bath car and be steamed, bathed and spotted by the time
he reached the world's fair grounds.
The swain could steam and soak the grime of the tunnel passage from his face ere he reached his sweetheart's home in the west, and the hilarious husband could, in the Turkish bath car, travel to meet his alert spouse
secure in the knowledge that he would
not pronounce lodge "lodgsh."

Elegen constructed the first Turkish bath car within two weeks from the time the idea entered his head.

Loubet Growing in Popularity.

President Loubet is rapidly driving
his master of ceremonies to despair,
says the Chicago Record-Herald. The president will not have ceremony. It does not fit in with his happy, impetu-ous manner. Directly his visitors arrive he rushes forward and gives a
grip of the hand before his bewildered
attendant has got out with the usual
announcement. And now, copying the example of the king of the Belgians
and no doubt with happy recollections
of his struggling bachelor days, the president takes Mme. Loubet out to dine at a cafe in the open air. Pa-risians are delighted.

A Kick From Mexico.

Tourists come here and shout to wait-
ers, hotel clerks, shopkeepers, etc., believing that if you only yell forth your
English it instantly becomes comprehensible. And a common error in breeding and one not confined to tourist foreigners is to make unpleasant remarks
about men, women and things in a tone
of voice which conveys at once to the natives that something disagreeable is being said. So we acquire not without
reason the reputation of being very gro-
sers, or very rude, and too often we
are.—Mexican Herald.

While at work in the figger shop
of the D. E. McNicol pottery yesterday
George Smurthwaite received an injury to his right hand which will lay
him up for several weeks.

A ring accidentally came off the mold and Mr. Smurthwaite's hand
was pierced in the fleshy part between
the thumb and front finger. The end protruded from the opposite side of his hand about two inches. The gentleman pluckily drew it from the wound,
which was a bad one, and lost no
time in having the injury attended to.
A physician was not called at the
time, but this morning the gentleman's
hand pained him so much that he
feared blood poison and had the wound
dressed at the office of an uptown physician.

Harry W. Wayne, a prominent en-
graver, of Wheeling, whose father,
Henry Wayne, is superintendent of the
decorating department at the Wheeling Pottery plants, is in the city on business.

The gentleman was interviewed this afternoon respecting the dispute between the printers and Proprietor
Franzheim. He stated that a conference had been held Monday morning,
which resulted in nothing being accomplished toward a settlement. Mr.
Wayne left Wheeling on Monday and
consequently does not know whether
anything of importance has transpired
in his absence. He would not be quoted as to his opinion of the merits
of the dispute.

The packers will meet in the Red
Men's hall this evening for the purpose of forming a local of the Brotherhood. A good attendance is expected, as the men engaged at this trade
are thoroughly awake to the necessity
for an organization.

The finishers will meet at the city
hall on Friday evening and will at
that time form a permanent organization, which will include every worker
engaged as an assistant to the various
tradesmen in the clay department.

In view of the early resumption of
work at the Chelsea pottery in New Cumberland houses to rent are scarce
and in great demand in that town.

Albie Morgan, of New Brighton, has accepted a position at the D. E. Mc-Nicol pottery, and he will go to work
next week.

Dosens in England.

Don't imagine that a dozen always
means 12 things. In the Staffordshire
potteries and in the earthenware trade,
a dozen to this day represents that
number of any special article which
can be offered at any fixed price.

For instance, the pitchers, which are
called jugs in the trade, are sold as 2, 3, 4, 6, 9, 12, 18, 24, 30 and 36 pieces to each dozen, the price for a dozen being constant.

The ordinary pitcher holding a quart
represents 12 to the dozen, while a pint
pitcher is 24 to the dozen and is so called
when dealing with that size.

Few of the articles of the trade are
sold in dozens of 12, plates being almost the only ones and some of them
being sold 60, 70 and even 80 to the dozen.

Besides these curiosities in figures the potters have peculiar names, such as

Work of the Earthworm.

When we behold a wide, turf covered expanse, we should remember that its smoothness, on which so much of its beauty depends, is mainly due to all the inequalities having been slowly leveled by worms. It is a marvelous reflection that the whole of the superficial mold over any such expanse has passed and will pass again every few years through the bodies of worms. The plow is one of the most ancient and most valuable of man's inventions, but long before he existed the land was, in fact, regularly plowed by earthworms.

It may be doubted whether there are many other animals which have played so important a part in the history of the world as have these lowly organized creatures. Some other animals, however, still more lowly organized—namely, corals—have done far more conspicuous work in having constructed innumerable reefs and islands in the great oceans, but these are almost confined to the tropical zones.

LOVE AMONG SAVAGES.

Ability to Stand Torture a Test of Masculine Devotion.

Among the Arabs of upper Egypt the youth who proposes to a girl must submit to a whipping at the hands of all her male relatives, and, says a dry narrator, "if he wishes to be considered worth having he must receive the chastisement, which is sometimes exceedingly severe, with an expression of enjoyment."

Not infrequently it is the maiden herself who imposes the test. The Saka-lava girls of Madagascar make their lovers stand at a short distance from a clever spear thrower and catch between the arm and side every weapon flung at them. If the youth "displays fear or fails to catch the spear, he is ignominiously rejected, but if there be no flinching and the spears are caught he is at once proclaimed an accepted lover."

Worse than this is the trial enforced upon their suitors by the Dongolowee girls. When in doubt as to the respective merits of two rivals, the young lady fastens a sharply pointed knife to each elbow; then, seating herself between her lovers, she drives the blades slowly into their thighs, and the hero who takes the greatest length of steel without a murmur wins the bride.

Major Mitchell in his "Expeditions Into the Interior of Eastern Australia" says of the natives on the river Darling that all their ideas of fighting are associated with the possession of gins or wives and that after a battle the wives
"do not always follow their fugitive husbands from the field, but frequently go over, as a matter of course, to the victors." "None but the brave deserve
the fair" is a maxim well understood of most barbaric races.—Chambers'

Composition on Love.

Love is a thing that makes people think each other pretty when nobody else does.

It causes two persons to be awful quiet when you're round and also quiet
when you're not round—only in a different way.

It also causes people to sit together on one end of a bench when there's heaps of room on the other end.

Nurses has it and sometimes policemen. That's when they don't know where you are, and you have lots of fun playing on the grass.

Husbands and wives has it, but most generally only lovers.

Old people don't have much, 'cause
it has to be about dimples and red cheeks and fluffy curls and lots of things which old people don't ever have.

When I grow up, I'll have to go and love some one, I suppose. Only she'll have to let me say what I do.

I do grow up.—Eddy in New York Sun.

good thing to have sometimes."

"What wonderful experience have you been having lately?"

"My wife was afraid to discharge
our cook, and she wouldn't go for me,
so we sent for Birdie's mother and turned her loose in the kitchen. They smashed some of the furniture, but the cook's gone."

TARIFF REVISION.

The question of tariff revision is
to come before the next congress, and
much pressure will undoubtedly be
brought to bear upon that body in favor of a number of changes in the schedule now in force. There is a wide difference of opinion, even among Republicans who have always stood as
champions of protection, as to the
wisdom of such procedure and the necessity for it. It is contended that
the Dingley bill contains inequalities
and that injustice to certain interests
is wrought in consequence. But conservative men will be slow to encourage any radical changes.

No one contends that the Dingley
bill is perfect, or that the nation has
ever had a tariff law that was perfect.
But tested by results, it comes nearer
fulfilling all requirements than any of
its predecessors. Unquestionably it
has been one of the chief factors in
bringing about the present unparalleled prosperity, which extends to every section of the country. It has been tried and has not been found wanting.
Why, then, should an attempt be made
to interfere with its workings? The
country has had too many sorrowful
examples of the effect of tariff tink-
ering. The tinkers, once started,
never know where or when to stop.
The result is that business currents
are interrupted, capitalists hesitate to
make investments and industry is
stopped or checked, while uncertainty
prevails.

It is a condition and not a theory
which confronts us. That condition is
genuine and abounding prosperity.
Let it alone. The Dingley tariff has been in force only a few years. It has
been successful as a revenue producer,
successful in stimulating every branch
of industry. Time enough to cast it
aside when it has outgrown its usefulness. That time has not arrived,
and it would be folly for a Republican
congress to follow in Democratic foot-
steps and strike a blow at industrial
life. That would not be the intention,
but it would be the effect of an at-

A NEGLECTED LAW.

There is, on the statute books of Ohio, the following law:
"That whoever sells, gives or furnishes to any minor under 16 years
of age any cigarette, cigarette wrap-
per, or any cigar or tobacco, upon
conviction thereof shall be fined not
less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or imprisoned not less than two nor more than thirty days, or both, for the first offense, and fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars and imprisoned not less than five

nor more than sixty days for the second or any subsequent offense."

It is a wise and proper law. It is not enforced in East Liverpool, and
arrests and convictions under it are
rare in other cities. Yet everybody
admits that the cigarette is an evil
and should be suppressed. Why not

AN ENCOURAGING OUTLOOK.

Frederick W. Hollis, the American
member of the international court of
arbitration at The Hague, is not one
of those who consider that tribunal a
useless one. He has had an opportunity of talking with leading states-
men, foreign ministers and influential
public men in Europe. Prior to his departure from London for this country
he said in an interview:

"From all we have heard we believe
that the outlook for peace among the
great powers and for gradual but un-
mistakable development of the intent
of the peace conference could hardly
be better. No European people wants war any more than the Americans.
Notwithstanding all appearances to the contrary, public opinion is today
the greatest European power. It would be folly to say there is no longer danger of war, for popular excitement in any one quarter may upset
all calculations. Still the existence of
a permanent tribunal to decide inter-
national disputes, the well-recognized
economic break-down which war now
means for all belligerents, the lessons
of the Boer war and the frightful
fiasco in China, are all working powerfully for peace."

Jerry Simpson is not a millionaire
yet, but he "as 'opes." He is now
worth $100,000, wears socks, and has
ceased to worry about the perils
threatened by plutocracy. Prosperity is a powerful antidote to Popu-
lism.

State Senator Barksdale, temporary chairman of the Virginia Democratic convention, bids farewell to Bryan in a eulogy which reads respu-
ciously like an obituary notice.

Virginia has a society for the suppression of spurious titles. It will
not prosper in a region where colonels
by courtesy are so numerous.

Carrie Nation is apparently trying
her best to get herself arrested again.

Ingenious St. Louisian Invents a Lav-
atory on Wheels.

A street car Turkish bath establishment is the newest thing in St. Louis,
says the Chicago Record-Herald. It has
been constructed to meet the pressing
twentieth century demand for a time
saver.

Herman Egan of St. Louis conceived
this novel idea, and he has constructed the first Turkish bathhouse
that ever stood on wheels. Run on the streets like a mail or express car, the Turkish bath car, the inventor believes,
would save the busy man's time and be
the balm of life to the henpecked round-
er. The man of affairs could leave Union station in a Turkish bath car and be steamed, bathed and spotted by the time he reached the world's fair grounds. The swain could steam and soak the grime of the tunnel passage from his face ere he reached his sweet-heart's home in the west, and the bilious husband could, in the Turkish
bath car, travel to meet his alert spouse
secure in the knowledge that he would
not pronounce lodge "lodgsh."

Egan constructed the first Turkish
bath car within two weeks from the

Loubet Growing in Popularity.

President Loubet is rapidly driving
his master of ceremonies to despair.
The president will not have ceremony.
It does not fit in with his happy, impetu-ous manner. Directly his visitors arrive he rushes forward and gives a
grip of the hand before his bewildered
attendant has got out with the usual
announcement. And now, copying the example of the king of the Belgians
and no doubt with happy recollections
of his struggling bachelor days, the
president takes Mme. Loubet out to dine at a cafe in the open air. Pa-
risians are delighted.

A Kick From Mexico.

Tourists come here and shout to wait-
ers, hotel clerks, shopkeepers, etc., believing that if you only yell forth your
English it instantly becomes comprehensible. And a common error in breeding and one not confined to tourist foreigners is to make unpleasant remarks
about men, women and things in a tone
of voice which conveys at once to the
natives that something disagreeable is
reason the reputation of being very gro-
sers, or very rude, and too often we
are.—Mexican Herald.

Local POTTERIES.

While at work in the figger shop
of the D. E. McNicol pottery yesterday
George Smurthwaite received an injury to his right hand which will lay
him up for several weeks.

A ring accidentally came off the
mold and Mr. Smurthwaite's hand
was pierced in the fleshy part between
the thumb and front finger. The end
protruded from the opposite side of his
hand about two inches. The gentle-
man pluckily drew it from the wound,
which was a bad one, and lost no
time in having the injury attended to.
A physician was not called at the
time, but this morning the gentleman's
hand pained him so much that he
feared blood poison and had the wound
dressed at the office of an uptown physician.

Harry W. Wayne, a prominent en-
graver of Wheeling, whose father,
Henry Wayne, is superintendent of the
decorating department at the Wheeling Pottery plants, is in the city on business.

The gentleman was interviewed this
afternoon respecting the dispute between the printers and Proprietor
Franzheim. He stated that a conference had been held Monday morning,
which resulted in nothing being accomplished toward a settlement. Mr.
Wayne left Wheeling on Monday and
consequently does not know whether
anything of importance has transpired
in his absence. He would not be quoted as to his opinion of the merits
of the dispute.

The packers will meet in the Red
Men's hall this evening for the purpose of forming a local of the Brotherhood. A good attendance is expect-
ed, as the men engaged at this trade
are thoroughly awake to the necessity
for an organization.

The finishers will meet at the city
hall on Friday evening and will at
that time form a permanent organization, which will include every worker
engaged as an assistant to the various
tradesmen in the clay department.

work at the Chelsea pottery in New Cumberland houses to rent are scarce

Albie Morgan, of New Brighton, has accepted a position at the D. E. Mc-Nicol pottery, and he will go to work

Dosens in England.

Don't imagine that a dozen always
means 12 things. In the Staffordshire
potteries and in the earthenware trade
a dozen to this day represents that
number of any special article which
can be offered at any fixed price.

For instance, the pitchers, which are
called jugs in the trade, are sold as 2, 3, 4, 6, 9, 12, 18, 24, 30 and 36 pieces to
each dozen, the price for a dozen being
constant.

The ordinary pitcher holding a quart
represents 12 to the dozen, while a pint
pitcher is 24 to the dozen and is so called
when dealing with that size.

Few of the articles of the trade are
sold in dozens of 12, plates being al-
most the only ones and some of them
being sold 60, 70 and even 80 to the
dozen.

Besides these curiosities in figures the pottery has peculiar names, such as cocksput, twiflers, etc., that make up a trade language of itself.

The baker's dozen of 13 is a recog-

TEACHING TEACHERS

INTERESTING TALKS TO HANCOCK COUNTY EDUCATORS.

History of the Mountain State Entertainingly Set Forth—Arithmetical Training.

An interesting talk on early Trans-Allegheny history formed a feature of the Hancock county teachers' institute. Much about West Virginia that was noteworthy was set forth by Prof. Skinner. West Virginia corresponded to the Vandalla grant that included the Panhandle state. Nemocatin, an Indian, blazed a line from Cumberland, Md., to Ft. Duquesne that became Braddock's fatal path and later yet the National pike.

Devotional exercises by Rev. J. S. Pomeroy, of Fairview, Tuesday morning were followed by a pleasant greeting by that gentleman, in which he congratulated the members of the profession assembled.

In his talk on methods of arithmetic Prof. Skinner deprecated the lack of mental arithmetic training in schools, city and country, and argued against all present tendency to make automatic mathematicians.

Letter writing formed the next subject discussed in round table fashion by the institute. Formality and familiarity were dwelt upon in their several humorous extremes, while all present seemed to agree that an honest sincerity of purpose was a safe dictator either in hand shaking or writing by letter.

Prof. Patterson talked on "Examination as a Test," being of the opinion that a single written test was not a criterion of ability. Prof. Henderson, of New Cumberland, and Prof. Moore took part in the discussion.

Mrs. Ida Elliott, whose special work here is to familiarize the teachers with Frye's system of geographies, talked interestingly, concluding the forenoon session.

Prof. Lee gave an interesting exposition of light, its angles, refractions and other phases at the opening period of the afternoon session.

Proceeding to the practical in her afternoon talk, Mrs. Elliott defined the object of geography.

MAY START DEC. 1

Good Progress Being Made at the Chester Mill—Many New Houses Promised.

Announcement was made yesterday that it was the intention of the American Tin Plate company to have the plant in operation not later than Dec. 1. All possible haste is being made in enlarging the works, and every day steam is raised in the boilers to operate the large crane used to place the ponderous machinery in position.

Following in the wake of this is the story of the intention of several men to build a number of houses on the land in the vicinity of the mill. While the plans for these houses are not made public, or even the number to be built given out, it is said the houses will be ready for occupants within a few months.

WENT UP IN SMOKE

The Way Prof. Kinkade's Balloon Ascended Last Night—New Flying Machine Ordered.

The balloon of Prof. T. H. Kinkade was destroyed by fire at the park last night. Preparations were being made for the ascension and the balloon was almost inflated when Kinkade threw some more gasoline on the fire. The flames shot up in the balloon just as a gust of wind happened along and blew it over against the flames, and the outfit was entirely consumed.

Joseph Cannon, who assists Mr. Kinkade in making preparations for the ascensions, was slightly burned about the hands. Mr. Kinkade immediately telegraphed for another balloon and it is expected here in a few days.

NEW WATERFORD PICNIC

Churches of That Town Represented on an Excursion to Rock Springs.

The union picnic being held at Rock Springs park today by the churches of New Waterford is attended by 750 people. They arrived over the Cleveland & Pittsburgh railroad. As the cars which were waiting at the foot of Union street for the excursionists leaving for the park one of them jumped the track at the corner of Union and Third streets, but traffic was delayed only for a few minutes.

OVER A BANK

Went Driver And Horses, But Both Escaped Any Serious Injury.

John Lane, employed as a driver by Contractor John McLaughlin, had a narrow escape from being seriously injured yesterday afternoon while working on the grading being done at the mill. Lane was in charge of two horses hitched to a scraper and had taken a load of dirt over to the hollow which is being filled. He drove upon the dump, and when the scraper was turned over the check line became fastened in the harness in some manner and it pulled the horses' heads so hard that they began to back.

The team went over the bank, a distance of about 30 feet. Lane following in the rear, but the horses were uninjured save for a few scratches. Lane was considerably bruised.

Stole Her Tomatoes.

Mrs. Albert Webster has in her yard at her home on Virginia avenue a number of choice tomato vines, the tomatoes on which are just beginning to ripen. Monday afternoon Mrs. Webster was compelled to go to East Liverpool to do some shopping and during her absence a number of boys entered the yard and taking all the tomatoes that were about half ripe broke several of the vines. The youngsters are known and they will be arrested.

Fills Near Chester Mill.

Much filling in is being done about the switches leading to the Chester tin mill, and it would not be surprising to see another siding constructed about the mill. The dirt that is being dumped over the embankment there is obtained from the excavating being done about the mill for the new additions.

Got Off With a Fine.

Mike Connor, who became bad Monday night and broke in the door of his home, near First street, with an ax, was given a hearing yesterday afternoon. He pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk and disorderly and was fined $1 and costs, which he paid and was released.

CHESTER NOTES.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Harper, of Middle Run, a daughter.

Mabel, the 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Smith, is very ill at her home on Carolina avenue and her recovery is doubtful.

The wife of Rev. J. S. Pomeroy, a retired Presbyterian clergyman, of Fairview, is reported critically ill of stomach trouble.

The six new bowling alleys which were ordered several weeks ago for the park arrived this morning, and they will be placed in position at once.

Bound to Find Fault.

A street car picked up a lame man the other day, and in less than a minute it became evident that the new passenger intended to make a kick about something or other. He was just turning around to face the conductor when that individual moved up three gets ahead and said:

"Sir, I do not own any stock in this road."

"No," was the reply.

"And I am not the manager."

"No?"

"Nor a division superintendent nor the official starter. I am not to blame for open cars, closed cars, fast time or slow time."

"Who said you were?" growled the passenger.

"I simply conduct this one car to the best of my poor ability and can't even jaw the motorman."

"Well, what are you telling me all this for?"

"Why, sir, I rather expected you'd raise a kick of some sort, and I didn't want to be blamed for what was not my fault."

"Oh, I see. No, I didn't intend to find one word of fault with anything or anybody, but being you've called my attention to it let me say that I believe you'd look a darn sight better with your ears lopped off and your nose turned up at the end."—Brooklyn Citizen.

IMPROVEMENT WANTED

People in the East End of Wellsville Tell Why Their Streets Should be Paved.

The sentiment is growing in Wellsville that the east end of the town should be paved, and the sooner the work is done the better off the town will be. Clerk McQueen of the Wellsville council, said:

"There are many houses in the East End that are almost useless. They are old, having been built many years ago. If the streets of that part of town were paved it is reasonable to believe these old houses would be remodeled or new and better ones erected. By so doing the town would derive more benefit in the way of taxes, and if the taxes are increased more improvements could be made."

"During the past few years the council of Wellsville has authorized many improvements for the west end of the town, while it seems that the East End has been somewhat neglected. There is ample ground in the East End of Wellsville upon which improvements could be made, and if the several streets in that section were paved many new homes would probably be built."

MECCA FOR THIEVES

Sneaks Make a Haul at the Home of W. F. Lones in Wellsville.

Wellsville seems to be the Mecca for robbers. Thieves entered the residence of Attorney W. F. Lones, on Tenth street, yesterday morning. No person was in the house at the time. A gold watch and chain, the property of Mrs. Lones, were taken. A neighbor saw several men leave the yard. Last evening Officers Madden and Thorne locked up three suspects, holding them until this morning, when they were released for lack of proof.

An attempt was made last evening to rob the residence of William Stewart, on Broadway, near Fifth street. The thieves were frightened away before any booty was secured. The police were called and Chief Morrissey chased a would-be robber, who made his escape.

AGAINST THE COMBINE.

OHIO SECRETARY OF STATE TO DEMAND TAX.

Attorney General May Bring Suits For Alleged Violation of Anti-Trust Law.

Columbus, O., Aug. 14.—The secretary of state today will forward to the president of the United States Steel corporation blanks similar to those sent to their foreign corporations doing business in the state, notifying the corporation that the state is ready to receive the tax due it under the law applying to foreign corporations.

If the company refuses to pay the tax, suit will at once be brought to collect it. If the corporation consents to pay the tax it will have qualified, it is claimed, merely to do a legal business in the state. The secretary of state and attorney general say they are convinced that the constituent companies are doing an illegal business in the state in that they are connected with a trust, and whether the United States Steel corporation pays the tax or not, proceedings will be brought against the Ohio companies under the anti-trust law. The state of Ohio has no jurisdiction over the United States Steel corporation, as a whole, and if the corporation's return to the secretary of state satisfies him that it can not qualify to do business in Ohio, it is possible that the attorney general of the United States and the attorneys general of all states in which the steel trust operates may be asked to bring proceedings against it. Attorney General Sheets admitted that such a course is within the range of possibility, but declined to make a statement as to his probable action.

Former Attorney General Frank S. Monnett, who has been retained by the Anti-Trust league and the Knights of Labor to fight the trust, submitted to the secretary of state a long list of written questions relative to the standing of its constituent companies in Ohio. He requested an early and written reply, but was not accommodated. It is his purpose to show that these companies have been illegally operating in Ohio, without interference from the secretary of state's department.

THE SCHLEY INQUIRY.

Statement Given Out by Hackett as to Witnesses.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Acting Secretary Hackett, of the navy department, gave out a statement in regard to the witnesses to be summoned before the Schley court of inquiry. It was in part as follows:

"The court will convene on the 12th of September. What witnesses will be brought before the court in behalf of Admiral Schley is for the admiral himself to say. No one can possibly know what witnesses the court is going to summon before them."

"The judge advocate of the court, on the 29th of July, addressed a letter to Admiral Schley, requesting the admiral to communicate with him in regard to witnesses, if any of them were located at a distance from Washington, whom he might wish to have appear before the court. This was done because it was taken for granted that most of them were officers of the navy. It was highly important that they should be within reach when wanted to testify."

"Admiral Schley responded with a partial list of those whom he thought he would be likely to want present, stating that there would doubtless be others. He was told that he would have a right to call others as witnesses, and also informed that some of the persons named by him might possibly be called by the judge advocate."

"The whole thing is in the preliminary stage, to see to it that officers of the navy who are cognizant of the facts involved will be where they can be reached in season to attend as witnesses if needed."

Beyond this statement Mr. Hackett declined to answer specific questions as to particular witnesses, especially as to whether Admiral Sampson was on the list prepared by the judge advocate of the court, and he further announced that hereafter he would decline to answer all inquiries regarding matters relating to the Schley court.

ADVICES FROM COLOMBIA.

Letters Received From Minister Hart and Several Consular Officers.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The state department Tuesday received mail advices from three different quarters in Colombia, all showing revolutionary movements in progress and a rather serious condition of affairs. Both termini of the Panama railway route were heard from. Consul General Gudgeon writing from Panama as to a revolutionary attack on nearby towns, and Consul Malmros, of Colon, reporting that guerrilla fighting had been going on at different points between Colon and Panama. At the same time Minister Hart wrote from the capital of Colombia, as to the arrest and imprisonment of prominent adherents of the former president, Dr. Sanclemente, as they were suspected of seeking to have the nationalist organization join with the liberals, who are said to be showing increased strength and activity in a revolutionary movement. Although these letters have taken some time to come forward, yet they give the state department about the best and only definite information which is at hand as to the condition of affairs. Mr. Gudgeon's letter speaks of a revolutionary raid on the 26th and 27th of July, in which an alcalde and several policemen were made prisoners and some arms and provisions captured. This is not the holding up of the train at Matachin, reported by him by cable, as that happened later and did not result in any looting.

The navy department received word of the departure of the Iowa from Puget Sound for San Francisco, whence she will go to Panama if her services are required there.

OHIO SECRETARY OF STATE TO DEMAND TAX.

Columbus, O., Aug. 14.—The secretary of state today will forward to the president of the United States Steel corporation blanks similar to those sent to their foreign corporations doing business in the state, notifying the corporation that the state is ready to receive the tax due it under the law applying to foreign corporations.

If the company refuses to pay the tax, suit will at once be brought to collect it. If the corporation consents to pay the tax it will have qualified, it is claimed, merely to do a legal business in the state. The secretary of state and attorney general say they are convinced that the constituent companies are doing an illegal business in the state in that they are connected with a trust, and whether the United States Steel corporation pays the tax or not, proceedings will be brought against the Ohio companies under the anti-trust law. The state of Ohio has no jurisdiction over the United States Steel corporation, as a whole, and if the corporation's return to the secretary of state satisfies him that it can not qualify to do business in Ohio, it is possible that the attorney general of the United States and the attorneys general of all states in which the steel trust operates may be asked to bring proceedings against it. Attorney General Sheets admitted that such a course is within the range of possibility, but declined to make a statement as to his probable action.

Former Attorney General Frank S. Monnett, who has been retained by the Anti-Trust league and the Knights of Labor to fight the trust, submitted to the secretary of state a long list of written questions relative to the standing of its constituent companies in Ohio. He requested an early and written reply, but was not accommodated. It is his purpose to show that these companies have been illegally creating in Ohio, without interference from the secretary of state's department.

THE SCHLEY INQUIRY.

Statement Given Out by Hackett as to Witnesses.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Acting Secretary Hackett, of the navy department, gave out a statement in regard to the witnesses to be summoned before the Schley court of inquiry. It was in part as follows:

"The court will convene on the 12th of September. What witnesses will be brought before the court in behalf of Admiral Schley is for the admiral himself to say. No one can possibly know what witnesses the court is going to summon before them."

"The judge advocate of the court, on the 29th of July, addressed a letter to Admiral Schley, requesting the admiral to communicate with him in regard to witnesses, if any of them were located at a distance from Washington, whom he might wish to have appear before the court. This was done because it was taken for granted that most of them were officers of the navy. It was highly important that they should be within reach when wanted to testify."

"Admiral Schley responded with a partial list of those whom he thought he would be likely to want present, stating that there would doubtless be others. He was told that he would have a right to call others as witnesses, and also informed that some of the persons named by him might possibly be called by the judge advocate."

"The whole thing is in the preliminary stage, to see to it that officers of the navy who are cognizant of the facts involved will be where they can be reached in season to attend as witnesses if needed."

Beyond this statement Mr. Hackett declined to answer specific questions as to particular witnesses, especially as to whether Admiral Sampson was on the list prepared by the judge advocate of the court, and he further announced that hereafter he would decline to answer all inquiries regarding matters relating to the Schley court.

ADVICES FROM COLOMBIA.

Letters Received From Minister Hart and Several Consular Officers.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The state department Tuesday received mail advices from three different quarters in Colombia, all showing revolutionary movements in progress and a rather serious condition of affairs. Both termini of the Panama railway route were heard from, Consul General Gudger writing from Panama as to a revolutionary attack on nearby towns, and Consul Malmros, of Colon, reporting that guerrilla fighting had been going on at different points between Colon and Panama. At the same time Minister Hart wrote from the capital of Colombia, as to the arrest and imprisonment of prominent adherents of the former president, Dr. Sanclemente, as they were suspected of seeking to have the nationalist organization join with the liberals, who are said to be showing increased strength and activity in a revolutionary movement. Although these letters have taken some time to come forward, yet they give the state department about the best and only definite information which is at hand as to the condition of affairs. Mr. Gudger's letter speaks of a revolutionary raid on the 26th and 27th of July, in which an alcalde and several policemen were made prisoners and some arms and provisions captured. This is not the holding up of the train at Matacin, reported by him by cable, as that happened later and did not result in any looting.

The navy department received word of the departure of the Iowa from Puget Sound for San Francisco, whence she will go to Panama if her services are required there.

THE LADY OF LYNN

By SIR WALTER BESANT

Copyright, 1900, by Sir Walter Besant

The next arrival from London was Sir Harry Malyns, a baronet and country gentleman whose life was wholly devoted to the pleasures of town. Those who had seen the withered old anatomy carried out of his carriage laughed at the thought of this ancient person still devoted to the pleasures of the town. "Nay," said the varlet, grinning. "But wait till you see him dressed. Wait till he has passed through my hands. You think he is at his last gasp. Indeed I thought so myself when I gave him his sack posset and put him to bed, but he will recover. Sir Harry is not so old but he can still bear some fatigues."

There was another whose arrival caused no ringing of bells or salutations by the horns. This was a certain Colonel Lanyon, who wore the king's scarlet, having served and received promotion in the king's armies. He drank the hardest, he played the deepest, he swore the loudest and he was always ready to take offense. Yet he was tolerated and even liked, because he was good company. He sang songs; he told anecdotes; he had seen service in the West Indies and in many other places; he had passed through many adventures; he assumed, and successfully, the manner of a good sportsman, free with his money, who played deep, paid his debts of honor at once and expected to be paid in like manner.

Last of all came the prince of this company, Lord Fyngdale himself.

Sir Harry Malyns being asked if he knew his lordship, shook his head. "We of the gay world," he said, speaking as a young man, "do not commonly include Lord Fyngdale among the beaux and bucks. There is in him a certain haughtiness which forbids the familiarities common among ourselves."

"Is he, then, a saint?"

"Why, sir, I know nothing about saints. There are none."

Sam Sample showed good sense in going around to visit his old friends. Among others he called upon Captain Crowle, to whom he behaved with singular discernment, in such a way as would please the old man, for on board ship we like a cheerful sailor, one who takes punishment without sniveling and bears no malice thereafter. A ship is like a boys' school, where a flogging wipes out the offense and master and boy become good friends after it, whatever the heinousness of the crime.

"Sir," said Sam, standing before the captain modestly, "you will understand, first of all, that I am reminded in coming here of the last time that I saw you."

"Aye, my lad, I have not forgotten." The captain did not rise from his armchair, nor did he offer Sam his hand. He waited to learn in what spirit the young man approached him.

"Believe me, sir," said Sam, "I am not unmindful of a certain lesson, rough perhaps, but deserved. The presumption of youth, ignorance of the world, ignorance of the prize to which I aspired, may be my excuse, if any were needed. I was then both young and ignorant." It must be admitted that Sam possessed the gift of words.

"Indeed I was too young to understand the humble nature of my origin and my position and too ignorant to understand my own presumption. Therefore, sir, before I say anything more I beg your forgiveness. That presumption, sir, can never, I assure you, be repeated. I know at least my own place and the distance between a certain young lady and myself."

"Why, my lad," said the captain, "since you talk in that modest way I hear no malice—none—wherefore here is my hand in token of forgiveness. And so on that head we will speak no more."

He extended his hand, which Sam took, still in humble attitude.

"I am deeply grateful, captain," he said. "You will perhaps before long find out how grateful I can be." Time, in fact, did show the depth of his gratitude.

HE PRESENTED A CERTAIN THE SON OF A NOBLE LADY.

"Well, sir, I am now in high favor with my Lord Fyngdale, on whom you waited this morning."

"I hope his favor will end in a snug place. Sam. Forget not the main point. Well, your patron is a goodly and a proper man to look at. Sit down, Sam. Take a glass of home brewed. You must wait it after the ale of London, which is, so far as I remember, but poor stuff. Well, now, about your noble lord. He is a married man, I suppose?"

"Unfortunately, no. He is difficult to please."

"Ah! And I suppose, like most young gentlemen, something of a profligate, is, Sam? Or a gambler, likely? One who has ruined many innocents? Eh?" The captain looked mighty cunning.

"Sir—sir"—Sam spread out his hands in expostulation—"You distress me. Lord Fyngdale a profligate? Lord Fyngdale a gambler? Lord Fyngdale a libertine? Sir—Captain Crowle"—He spoke very earnestly. The tears came into his eyes. He laid his hand upon the captain's knee. "Sir, I assure you, he is, on the contrary, the best of men. There is no more virtuous nobleman in the country. My tongue is tied as his lordship's secretary, else could I tell of good deeds. Truly his right hand knoweth not what his left hand doeth. My lord is all goodness."

"Aye, aye. This is good hearing, indeed."

"Lord Fyngdale a gambler? Why, he may take part at a table, but not a gambler. No man is less a gambler. What doth it matter to him if he wins or loses a little? He neither desires to win nor does he fear to lose. You will, I dare say, see him in the cardroom just to encourage the spirit of the company."

"A very noble gentleman, indeed." The captain drank a glass of his home brewed. "A very noble gentleman, truly. Go on, Samuel."

"Also he is one who—Captain, if there is one thing in the world that my patron abhors it is the man who ruins innocency and leaves his victim to starve. No, sir; his lordship is a man of the nicest honor and the highest principle."

"He has a secretary who is grateful, at least," observed the captain.

"His sword is ever ready to defend the helpless and to uphold the virtuous. Would to heaven there were more like the right honorable the Earl of Fyngdale!"

"Look you, Master Sam," said the captain. "Your good opinion of your patron does you credit. I honor you for your generous words. I have never so far, and I am now past 70, encountered any man who was either saint or angel, but in every man have I always found some flaw whether of temper or of conduct. So that I do not pretend to believe all that you make out."

Sam Sample sighed and rose. "I ask not for your entire belief, sir. It will be sufficient if you learn, as I have learned, the great worth of this exalted and incomparable nobleman. As for flaws, we are all human, but I know of none. So I take my leave. I venture to hope, sir, that your good lady and your lovely ward—I use the word with due respect—are in good health."

So he departed, leaving the captain thoughtful.

And now they were all among us, the vile crew brought together for our undoing by this lord so noble and so exalted. And we were already entangled in a whole mesh of lies and conspiracies, the result of which you have now to learn.

CHAPTER VI. AN ABDUCTION.

It was the custom with some of the high fliers, or the bucks, as they were called, when the cardroom was closed to go off together to a tavern, there to finish the night drinking, singing, gambling and rioting the whole night through and long after daylight. Truly the town of Lynn witnessed more profligacy and wickedness during this summer than all its long and ancient history had witnessed or could relate.

The assembly was held twice a week, on Thursday and on Friday. It was on Thursday night that a certain statement was made in a drunken conversation which might have awakened suspicion of some dark design had it been recorded. A small company of the said high fliers, among whom were Colonel Lanyon and a young man named Tom Rising, marched off to the tavern most frequented by them after the closing of the rooms and called for punch, cards and candles. Then they sat down to play, with the ungodly and profane discourse which they affected. They played and drank, the young man drinking fast and hard, the colonel, after his custom, keeping his head cool.

Tom Rising's estates lay near Swaffham. He was well known as the best and most fearless rider in the whole county. He was the keenest sportsman. He knew where to find fox, hare, badger, ferret, stoat or weasel. He knew where to put up a pheasant or a covey of partridges. He could play at all manly sports. He was a wild, fearless, reckless, debauched young fellow, whom everybody loved and everybody feared, always ready with a blow or an oath, afraid of nothing if he set his heart upon anything. You shall see that he set his heart upon one thing and failed. Tom lost heavily and drank deep.

"I will play till I have stripped every man among you to the very bones," he said. "Why do I say this? Because, gentlemen, after tomorrow night I shall be the richest man in the county. Do you hear? The richest man in the county. You don't know how? Very well. Do you think I'm going to tell you? Ho, ho! When you hear the news, you'll say 'twas only Tom—only Tom Rising—had the courage to venture and to win."

"He means the hazard table," said the colonel.

"No, not the hazard table," Tom went on. "Oh, I know the table and the woman who keeps the bank and pretends to weep when you lose. I know about her. I've heard talk about her. What is it? Don't remember. Tell you tomorrow."

"He should stop talking," said the colonel. "We must not listen to his wanderings."

"Richest man in the county," he repeated. "Colonel, I like your company. You lay down your money like a man. In a week, colonel, I'll have it all. There shan't be a guinea left among you all. Richest man in county—make—guineas—fly." His head sank down again. He was once more speechless.

His friends looked from one to the other. What did Tom Rising mean? "Gentlemen," said the colonel, "he has been drinking for many days. He has some kind of a fit upon him. After a sleep he will be better. Just now he dreams of riches. I have known men in such a condition to see animals and think that they are hunted by rats and clawed by devils."

Again Tom lifted his head and babbled confusedly.

"The richest man—the richest man—in the whole county. After tomorrow night—tonight—after tomorrow night. I have found out a short way to fortune. The richest man in the county."

So they left him sleeping in his chair, with his head on the table among the glasses and the spilt punch. The next was the night of the assembling, and Molly was present.

After dancing with his lordship, who then offered his hand to a lady of the county, she stood up with Tom Rising, who was by this time as sober as could be expected after such a night. He, in the hearing of everybody, loaded her with compliments of the common kind, such as would suit a milkmaid, but were not proper for a modest woman to hear. To these, however, Molly returned no reply and danced as if she heard them not. She then rejoined Lady Anastasia and with her retired to the cardroom, whither many of the young men followed her. She stood beside her ladyship and obliged the young men by choosing cards for them, which they lost or won. Tom Rising followed her and stood beside her with flushed face and trembling hands. It was remarked afterward that he seemed to assume the care of her. He kept gazing upon Molly with fierce and ravenous looks like a wolf who hungers after his prey and lives to wait for it. He played the while, however, and lost during the evening, I believe, some hundreds of pounds, but for reasons which you will presently hear he never paid that money.

Molly next had a second dance with his lordship. After it had been finished he offered her the refreshment of wine or chocolate, but she declined, saying that the captain now would be wishing her to go home and that her chair would be waiting.

So his lordship led her to the door, where indeed her chair was waiting, but no captain, and, bowing low, he handed her in and shut the door, and he returned to the assembly, and Molly's chair was immediately lifted up and borne rapidly away, she sitting alone, thinking of the evening and of her great triumph, suspecting no evil and thinking of no danger.

A minute later the captain came to the door. There he saw Molly's chairmen waiting with her chair. He looked about him. Where was Molly? He returned to the assembly; the girl was not there. He looked into the cardroom; his lordship was standing at the table, looking on. "My lord," said the captain in confusion, "where is my ward?"

"Miss Molly? Why, captain, I put her into her chair five minutes ago. She is gone."

"What devilry is forward?" cried Lord Fyngdale. "Come with me, captain. Come with me."

The chair into which Molly stepped without suspicion and without even looking for the captain, who should have walked beside her, stood, as I have said before, at the entrance of the long room. Outside the trees were hung with colored lamps; the place was as bright as in the sunshine of noon. One would think that nothing could be done in such a place which would not be observed. There is, however, one thing which is never observed—it is the personal appearance of servants. No one regards the boatman of the ferry or the driver of the hackney coach or the postboy or the chairman. The chair, then, stood with its door open opposite to the entrance of the long room. The chairmen stood retired, a little in the shade, but not so far off as to need calling, when Lord Fyngdale handed in the lady. This done, he stood, hat in hand, bowing. The chairmen stepped up briskly, seized the poles and marched off with the quick step of those who have a light burden to carry. No one observed the faces of the chairmen, or indeed thought of looking at them; no one remarked the fact that Tom Rising walked out of the long room directly afterward and followed the chair. Within Molly sat, unsuspecting, excited by the triumphs of the evening. The chair passed through the gardens and its gates. Instead of turning to the right, which would lead into Hayman's lane, the chairmen turned to the left and so through the town gate and beyond the wall and into the open fields. Yet Molly observed nothing. I think she fell asleep. When she came to herself, she looked out of the window. On the right and on the left of her were open fields.

It was a clear evening. Toward the middle of May there is no black darkness, but only a dimmer outline, with deeper shadows. Molly, who knew the country around Lynn perfectly well, understood at once that she had been carried outside the town; that she was no longer on the highroad, but on one of the cross tracks—one cannot call them roads—which connect the villages, so that there was very little chance of meeting any passengers or vehicles. And by the stars she saw that they were carrying her in a westerly direction, perhaps to South Wootton.

She perceived, therefore, that some devilry was going on. Now she was not a girl who would try to help herself in such a deserted and lonely spot by shrieking, nor did she see that any good purpose would be served by calling to the chairmen to let her out. She sat up, therefore, her heart beating a little faster than usual, and considered what she should do.

Molly, though not a woman of fashion, understood by this time her value, especially in the eyes of the adventurer, and she also understood quite clearly at this moment that she had been carried away without the knowledge of her guardian and that the intention of the abduction was nothing more or less than a forced marriage and the acquisition of her fortune. "Jack," she told me afterward, "I confess that I did wish, just for a little, that you might be coming along the road with a trusty club, but then I remembered that I was no puny threadpaper of a woman, but as strong as most men, and I took courage. Weapon I had none except a steel bodkin, gilt, stuck in my hair—a small thing, but it might serve if any man ventured too near, and I thought, besides, that there would be a hue and cry and that the country round would be scoured in all directions. They would most certainly grow tired of carrying me about in a chair; they must stop somewhere and put me into some place or other. I thought also that I could easily manage to keep off one man or perhaps two and that it would be very unlikely that more than one would attempt to force me into marriage. Perhaps I might escape. Perhaps I might barricade myself. Perhaps my bodkin might help me to save myself. I would willingly stab a man to the heart with it. Perhaps I might pick up something—a griddle man, or even a frying pan would do. What—

Owen Kimble, better known as "Old Kaintuck," is one of the most popular riders in the cycling sphere. Kimble is under contract to the American Bicycle company and is doing fine work on the national circuit. Kimble has a host of admirers, whom he has won by his consistent showing on the tracks.

IN HIGH REPUTE

The Great Author and Physician, Dr. A. W. Chase, Is Remembered in East Liverpool.

All over the world Dr. A. W. Chase's receipt book is known, as also in many parts of this country his skill as a physician, and from the great success of his medicines the name will be handed down from generation to generation. Attempts are often made to sell other medicines over the reputation of the doctor—some go so far as to use the name "Chase," but they dare not use the initials A. W.—portrait or signature, which is borne on every box of the genuine—the kind referred to by Mrs. George Hall, of 389 West Market street, East Liverpool, O., who says: "I was bilious—my head ached hard and constantly—there was a general feeling of weakness and depression. I was asked to try Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and did so, getting them at Larkins' drug store, corner Sixth and East Market streets. The result was very good indeed, as the biliousness was overcome—the headaches cured and bodily and nerve strength furnished. Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment I can vouch for in burns as a fine application."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are sold at 50 cents a box, also Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment at 50 cents, at dealers, or at Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., are on every package.

THE LADY OF LYNN

The next arrival from London was Sir Harry Malyns, a baronet and country gentleman whose life was wholly devoted to the pleasures of town. Those who had seen the withered old anatomy carried out of his carriage laughed at the thought of this ancient person still devoted to the pleasures of the town. "Nay," said the varlet, grinning. "But wait till you see him dressed. Wait till he has passed through my hands. You think he is at his last gasp. Indeed I thought so myself when I gave him his sack posset and put him to bed, but he will recover. Sir Harry is not so old but he can still bear some fatigues."

There was another whose arrival caused no ringing of bells or salutations by the horns. This was a certain Colonel Lanyon, who wore the king's scarlet, having served and received promotion in the king's armies. He drank the hardest, he played the deepest, he swore the loudest and he was always ready to take offense. Yet he was tolerated and even liked, because he was good company. He sang songs; he told anecdotes; he had seen service in the West Indies and in many other places; he had passed through many adventures; he assumed, and successfully, the manner of a good sportsman, free with his money, who played deep, paid his debts of honor at once and expected to be paid in like manner.

Last of all came the prince of this company, Lord Fyngdale himself.

Sir Harry Malyns being asked if he knew his lordship, shook his head. "We of the gay world," he said, speaking as a young man, "do not commonly include Lord Fyngdale among the beans and bucks. There is in him a certain haughtiness which forbids the familiarities common among ourselves."

"Is he, then, a saint?"

"Why, sir, I know nothing about saints. There are none."

Sam Simple showed good sense in going around to visit his old friends. Among others he called upon Captain Crowie, to whom he behaved with singular discernment, in such a way as would please the old man, for on board ship we like a cheerful sailor, one who takes punishment without sniveling and bears no malice thereafter. A ship is like a boys' school, where a flogging wipes out the offense and master and boy become good friends after it, whatever the heinousness of the crime.

"Sir," said Sam, standing before the captain modestly, "you will understand, first of all, that I am reminded in coming here of the last time that I saw you."

"Aye, my lad, I have not forgotten." The captain did not rise from his armchair, nor did he offer Sam his hand. He waited to learn in what spirit the young man approached him.

"Believe me, sir," said Sam, "I am not unmindful of a certain lesson, rough perhaps, but deserved. The presumption of youth, ignorance of the world, ignorance of the prize to which I aspired, may be my excuse, if any were needed. I was then both young and ignorant." It must be admitted that Sam possessed the gift of words.

"Indeed I was too young to understand the humble nature of my origin and my position and too ignorant to understand my own presumption. Therefore, sir, before I say anything more I beg your forgiveness. That presumption, sir, can never, I assure you, be repeated. I know at least my own place and the distance between a certain young lady and myself."

"Why, my lad," said the captain, "since you talk in that modest way I bear no malice—none—wherefore here is my hand in token of forgiveness. And so on that head we will speak no more."

He extended his hand, which Sam took, still in humble attitude.

"I am deeply grateful, captain," he said. "You will perhaps before long find out how grateful I can be." Time, in fact, did show the depth of his gratitude.

"Well, sir, I am now in high favor with my Lord Fyngdale, and whom you waited this morning."

"I hope his favor will end in a snug place, Sam. Forget not the main point. Well, your patron is a goodly and a proper man to look at. Sit down, Sam. Take a glass of home brewed. You must wait till after the ale of London, which is, so far as I remember, but poor stuff. Well, now, about your noble lord. He is a married man, I suppose?"

"Unfortunately, no. He is difficult to please."

"Ah! And I suppose, like most young tobelemen, something of a prodigal. Is, Sam? Or a gambler, likely? One who has ruined many innocents? Eh?"

The captain looked mighty cunning.

"Sir—sir"—Sam spread out his hands in expostulation—"you distress me. Lord Fyngdale a prodigal? Lord Fyngdale a gambler? Lord Fyngdale a libertine? Sir—Captain Crowie"—He spoke very earnestly. The tears came into his eyes. He laid his hand upon the captain's knee. "Sir, I assure you, he is, on the contrary, the best of men. There is no more virtuous nobleman in the country. My tongue is tied as his lordship's secretary, else could I tell of good deeds. Truly his right hand knoweth not what his left hand doeth. My lord is all goodness."

"Aye, aye. This is good hearing, indeed."

"Lord Fyngdale a gambler? Why, he may take part at a table, but not a gambler. No man is less a gambler. What doth it matter to him if he wins or loses a little? He neither desires to win nor does he fear to lose. You will, I dare say, see him in the cardroom just to encourage the spirit of the company."

"A very noble gentleman, indeed." The captain drank a glass of his home brewed. "A very noble gentleman, truly. Go on, Samuel Simple."

"Also he is one who—Captain, if there is one thing in the world that my patron abhors it is the man who ruins innocence and leaves his victim to starve. No, sir; his lordship is a man of the nicest honor and the highest principle."

"He has a secretary who is grateful, at least," observed the captain.

"His sword is ever ready to defend the helpless and to uphold the virtuous. Would to heaven there were more like the right honorable the Earl of Fyngdale!"

"Look you, Master Sam," said the captain. "Your good opinion of your patron does you credit. I honor you for your generous words. I have never so far, and I am now past 70, encountered any man who was either saint or angel, but in every man have I always found some flaw whether of temper or of conduct. So that I do not pretend to believe all that you make out."

Sam Simple sighed and rose. "I ask not for your entire belief, sir. I will be sufficient if you learn, as I have learned, the great worth of this exalted and incomparable nobleman. As for flaws, we are all human, but I know of none. So I take my leave. I venture to hope, sir, that your good lady and your lovely ward—I use the word with due respect—are in good health."

So he departed, leaving the captain thoughtful.

And now they were all among us, the vile crew brought together for our undoing by this lord so noble and so exalted. And we were already entangled in a whole mesh of lies and conspiracies, the result of which you have now to learn.

CHAPTER VI. AN ABDUCTION.

It was the custom with some of the high fliers, or the bucks, as they were called, when the cardroom was closed to go off together to a tavern, there to finish the night drinking, singing, gambling and rioting the whole night through and long after daylight. Truly the town of Lynn witnessed more prodigality and wickedness during this summer than all its long and ancient history had witnessed or could relate.

The assembly was held twice a week, on Thursday and on Friday. It was on Thursday night that a certain statement was made in a drunken conversation which might have awakened suspicion of some dark design had it been recorded. A small company of the said high fliers, among whom were Colonel Lanyon and a young man named Tom Rising, marched off to the tavern most frequented by them after the closing of the rooms and called for punch, cards and candles. Then they sat down to play, with the ungodly and profane discourse which they affected. They played and drank, the young man drinking fast and hard, the colonel, after his custom, keeping his head cool.

Tom Rising's estates lay near Swaffham. He was well known as the best and most fearless rider in the whole county. He was the keenest sportsman. He knew where to find fox, hare, badger, ferret, stoat or weasel. He knew where to put up a pheasant or a covey of partridges. He could play at all manly sports. He was a wild, fearless, reckless, debauched young fellow, whom everybody loved and everybody feared, always ready with a blow or an oath, afraid of nothing if he set his heart upon anything. You shall see that he set his heart upon one thing and failed. Tom lost heavily and drank deep.

"I will play till I have stripped every man among you to the very bones," he said. "Why do I say this? Because, gentlemen, after tomorrow night I shall be the richest man in the county. Do you hear? The richest man in the county. You don't know how? Very well. Do you think I'm going to tell you? Ho, ho! When you hear the news, you'll say 'twas only Tom—only Tom Rising—had the courage to venture and to win."

"He means the hazard table," said the colonel.

"No, not the hazard table," Tom went on. "Oh, I know the table and the woman who keeps the bank and pretends to weep when you lose. I know about her. I've heard talk about her. What is it? Don't remember. Tell you tomorrow."

"Richest man in the county," he repeated. "Colonel, I like your company. You lay down your money like a man. In a week, colonel, I'll have it all. There shall be a guinea left among you all. Richest man in county—make guineas—fly." His head sank down again. He was once more speechless.

His friends looked from one to the other. What did Tom Rising mean? "Gentlemen," said the colonel, "he has been drinking for many days. He has some kind of a fit upon him. After a sleep he will be better. Just now he dreams of riches. I have known men in such a condition to see animals and think that they are hunted by rats and clawed by devils."

Again Tom lifted his head and babbled confusedly.

"The richest man—the richest man—in the whole county. After tomorrow night—not tonight—after tomorrow night, I have found out a short way to fortune. The richest man in the county."

So they left him sleeping in his chair, with his head on the table among the glasses and the spilt punch.

The next was the night of the assembling, and Molly was present.

After dancing with his lordship, who then offered his hand to a lady of the county, she stood up with Tom Rising, who was by this time as sober as could be expected after such a night. He, in the hearing of everybody, loaded her with compliments of the common kind, such as would suit a milkmaid, but were not proper for a modest woman to hear. To these, however, Molly returned no reply and danced as if she heard them not. She then rejoined Lady Anastasia and with her retired to the cardroom, whither many of the young men followed her. She stood beside her ladyship and obliged the young men by choosing cards for them, which they lost or won. Tom Rising followed her and stood beside her with flushed face and trembling hands. It was remarked afterward that he seemed to assume the care of her. He kept gazing upon Molly with fierce and ravenous looks like a wolf who hungers after his prey and lives to wait for it. He played the while, however, and lost during the evening, I believe, some hundreds of pounds, but for reasons which you will presently hear he never paid that money.

Molly next had a second dance with his lordship. After it had been finished he offered her the refreshment of wine or chocolate, but she declined, saying that the captain now would be wishing her to go home and that her chair would be waiting.

So his lordship led her to the door, where indeed her chair was waiting, but no captain, and, bowing low, he handed her in and shut the door, and he returned to the assembly, and Molly's chair was immediately lifted up and borne rapidly away, she sitting alone, thinking of the evening and of her great triumph, suspecting no evil and thinking of no danger.

A minute later the captain came to the door. There he saw Molly's chairmen waiting with her chair. He looked about him. Where was Molly? He returned to the assembly; the girl was not there. He looked into the cardroom; his lordship was standing at the table, looking on. "My lord," said the captain in confusion, "where is my ward?"

"Miss Molly? Why, captain, I put her into her chair five minutes ago. She is gone."

"What devilry is forward?" cried Lord Fyngdale. "Come with me, captain. Come with me."

The chair into which Molly stepped without suspicion and without even looking for the captain, who should have walked beside her, stood, as I have said before, at the entrance of the long room. Outside the trees were hung with colored lamps; the place was as bright as in the sunshine of noon. One would think that nothing could be done in such a place which would not be observed. There is, however, one thing which is never observed—it is the personal appearance of servants. No one regards the boatman of the ferry or the driver of the hackney coach or the postboy or the chairman. The chair, then, stood with its door open opposite to the entrance of the long room. The chairmen stood retired, a little in the shade, but not so far off as to need calling, when Lord Fyngdale handed in the lady. This done, he stood, hat in hand, bowing. The chairmen stepped up briskly, seized the poles and marched off with the quick step of those who have a light burden to carry. No one observed the faces of the chairmen, or indeed thought of looking at them; no one remarked the fact that Tom Rising walked out of the long room directly afterward and followed the chair. Within Molly sat, unsuspecting, excited by the triumphs of the evening. The chair passed through the gardens and its gates. Instead of turning to the right, which would lead into Hayman's lane, the chairmen turned to the left and so through the town gate and beyond the wall and into the open fields. Yet Molly observed nothing. I think she fell asleep. When she came to herself, she looked out of the window. On the right and on the left of her were open fields.

It was a clear evening. Toward the middle of May there is no black darkness, but only a dimmer outline, with deeper shadows. Molly, who knew the country around Lynn perfectly well, understood at once that she had been carried outside the town; that she was no longer on the highroad, but on one of the cross tracks—one cannot call them roads—which connect the villages, so that there was very little chance of meeting any passengers or vehicles. And by the stars she saw that they were carrying her in a northerly direction, perhaps to South Wootton.

She perceived, therefore, that some devilry was going on. Now she was not a girl who would try to help her self in such a deserted and lonely spot by shrieking, nor did she see that any good purpose would be served by calling to the chairmen to let her out. She sat up, therefore, her heart beating a little faster than usual, and considered what she should do.

Molly, though not a woman of fashion, understood by this time her value, especially in the eyes of the adventurer, and she also understood quite clearly at this moment that she had been carried away without the knowledge of her guardian and that the intention of the abduction was nothing more or less than a forced marriage and the acquisition of her fortune. "Jack," she told me afterward, "I confess that I did wish, just for a little, that you might be coming along the road with a trusty club, but then I remembered that I was no puny threadpaster of a woman, but as strong as most men, and I took courage. Weapon I had none except a steel bodkin, gilt, stuck in my hair—a small thing, but it might serve if any man ventured too near, and I thought, besides, that there would be a hue and cry and that the country round would be scoured in all directions. They would most certainly grow tired of carrying me about in a chair; they must stop somewhere and put me into some place or other. I thought also that I could easily manage to keep off one man or perhaps two and that it would be very unlikely that more than one would attempt to force me into marriage. Perhaps I might escape. Perhaps I might barricade myself. Perhaps my bodkin might help me to save myself. I would willingly stab a man to the heart with it. Perhaps I might pick up something—a griddle would be a weapon handy for braining a man, or even a frying pan would do. What-

Owen Kimble, better known as "Old Kaintuck," is one of the most popular riders in the cycling sphere. Kimble is under contract to the American Bicycle company and is doing fine work on the national circuit. Kimble has a host of admirers, whom he has won by his consistent showing on the tracks.

Kimble is a native of Louisville, and his southern friends look on him as the "king of cyclists." In 1898, after having been a bridegroom for but three

JOINED THE STRIKE. TRADE ON A SMALL SCALE.

Ten Men Quit Work In a Carnegie Plant, at Pittsburgh.

VICTORY IN WHEELING DISTRICT

Trust Plants All Closed Down—Trust Officials Claim They Will Soon Get All Plants Going In Pittsburgh and Allegheny.

Pittsburg, Aug. 14.—Ten employees of the plate mill in the Lower Union plant, Twenty-ninth street, left their work and joined the strikers. The millers did not leave, but the men who went out were skilled men and they say that the mill will have to close down.

The management of the mill said that the mill would in no wise be crippled, but that it was running full force with a new crew that was put on just as soon as the strikers went out.

The Amalgamated association was holding its ground and gaining accessions to the ranks of strikers at McKeesport, the acknowledged local storm center.

On the other hand, the steel trust officials seemed perfectly satisfied with the situation. President G. C. McMurry, of the American Sheet Steel company, said that the situation was serene, and that all the mills are running smoothly in the Kiskiminetus valley.

The butt and lap welder boys at the plant of the National Tube company, McKeesport, came out, rendering 2,000 men idle. More of the lads were joining the strikers hourly. The welders number about 500.

The officials of the steel trust claimed the backbone of the strike was broken. They said they had the local situation thoroughly in hand and would be able to open all the Pittsburgh and Allegheny mills in a few days.

At New Castle every one of the big plants owned by the trust has been closed and the men propose to forestall the trust by organizing the Republic steel mill and prevent its being reopened.

In the Wheeling district the Amalgamated men are jubilant because they have succeeded in closing every mill of the trust or in so crippling them that while some are running, it is in name merely—no finished product appearing. In the other places where the struggle is on affairs are in much the same shape that they were Monday, neither side having made any substantial progress.

An effort will be made to have the men of South Chicago reconsider their purpose not to strike.

Seventy-five per cent of the Painter mill men have notified their employers that they are ready to return to work. Two mills were expected to resume this morning.

A TRAIN HOLD-UP BY FIVE MASKED MEN.

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 14.—The southbound Missouri Kansas and Texas train No. 3 was robbed at Caney Switch, 1. T., by five masked men. The express car was blown open and wrecked, the safe wrecked and the mail sacks rifled. The passengers were robbed of their money. There was $150 in the safe and it was estimated that about $400, not including jewelry, was secured from the passengers.

BROKEN INTO OLD METAL.

Mysterious Disposal of the Two Spanish Guns Commanding San Diego Harbor.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Aug. 14.—Several days ago it was discovered that the two modern six-inch Spanish guns, comprising the Punta Gorda battery which commands the entrance to the harbor of Santiago, were missing. This battery and the guns of the Sacoia battery were the only modern cannon employed by the Spaniards against the United States warships with the exception of those landed from the Spanish cruisers.

To-day the harbor police discovered the guns had been carried to a forest on the other side of the bay and been broken by explosives, ready for shipment as old metal. Several Spanish ships had been searched by the police, who had expected to discover that the guns were being shipped by the Spaniards to Spain. The sentries guarding them were removed six months ago. It was considered impossible to carry off the guns and there was no fear of malicious destruction. The thieves are now in jail.

ADVISES CLEMENCY.

Taft Tells Justices to Be Easy With First Offenses.

MANILA, Aug. 14.—The United States commission has left Manila on its northern trip. Chief Governor Taft has addressed a letter to the new justices, urging that the courts be so conducted as to create a good impression. The natives' first offenses should be treated with paternal clemency.

The contract providing for harbor improvements has been signed and work will begin immediately. The cost of the improvements will amount to $1,500,000.

Mr. Verplanck Accidentally Shot.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 14.—That the shooting of Samuel Verplanck and Laura Rankin, his wife's cousin, while driving near Fishkill Landing, last evening, was purely accidental, seemed to be clearly established by an investigation made to-day. It appears they were wounded by stray shots fired by some Italian laborer, who was hunting squirrels in the brush. It was also shown that neither Mr. Verplanck nor Miss Rankin were as badly wounded as at first reported.

Reached No Decision.

WARREN, O., Aug. 14.—Employees of the tin mill at Niles met this afternoon to decide whether they would handle black plate, said to have been purchased in England, for the American Tin Plate Company. No action will be taken until investigation is made between now and Thursday, when President Powell will be in Niles.

But There Was a Wider Distribution of the Dealings on Monday.

New York, Aug. 14.—Business Tuesday was on a small scale, but there was a wider distribution of the dealings. Strength was shown by many important stocks, but the general movement continued irregular. The opening was higher on a resumption of Monday's strength and the good tone of the London market. The fortnightly settlement abroad was arranged satisfactorily and arbitrage houses bought more liberally here than for some days. First prices were not long maintained, as traders realized, but when a demand arose for the eastern trunk lines and bituminous coal road stocks the entire market rallied sharply. Sugar was about the only notable exception to the day's strength, the bears lowering it 2 points at one time and selling steadily when it rallied. There was little news of importance bearing on either the crop conditions or the steel strike and the influence was less marked. Frequent relapses in prices were made, causing the Pacific stocks to sag temporarily under Monday's close. When pressure relaxed prices rallied easily, and as there were large purchases of St. Paul and the eastern stocks, shorts covered more generally in the market. The improvement in the trunk lines and soft coal stocks was partly due to the benefits expected to accrue from the recent formation of a bituminous coal combination. New York Central made the largest rise of 3/4, but Baltimore and Ohio, Pennsylvania, Chesapeake and Ohio and Norfolk and Western averaged 2 points better. Minor Vanderbilt stocks sympathized with the movement in New York Central and especially Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis. St. Paul was taken in good amounts and advanced 3/4 on reports that there might be an increased dividend declared next month. Short buying was considered to be responsible for the improved tone of it, but the waning influence of the crop conditions and the steel strike was also considered. Western and Pacific stocks followed pretty closely in the wake of St. Paul on its advance, and the grain carrying roads were helped by the heaviness of the grain market. The coals, tractions and some of the low priced industrials showed good strength at various times, the strong rise in international paper being due to expectations of a very favorable annual statement. But little interest was manifested in the United States steel stocks and they moved quite generally independent of other stocks. An early rise of 1/4 and 3/4 respectively in the common and preferred were followed by a gradual decline and they ended only 1/4 and 1/2 higher. The large payments made by the sub-treasury on account of army and navy credits and some receipts of gold at Pacific coast points caused a loss of about $1,500,000 by the banks to the sub-treasury up to Monday to be turned into a gain about as much. The stock market closed strong and at about the best for the principal features.

The bond market was quiet and firm. Total sales, par value, $960,000. United States bonds were all unchanged on the last call.

AN ENCOUNTER WITH MAD DOG

Policeman Morris Dispatched the Brute After a Dangerous Experience.

Before He Succeeded in Finishing the Animal And Twice Narrowly Escaped Being Bitten—Children Attacked By the Dog.

Policeman Morris cut short the life of a mad dog yesterday afternoon, but in performing the execution had an encounter with the brute which came near resulting seriously for him. The dog was the property of John Wood, and had been reported at police headquarters as being dangerous to the community, having bitten a child.

Going to the home of the dog's owner, at the corner of Forest street and Grove alley, Officer Morris found the dog lying on a porch in front of the house. The condition of the animal's eyes led the officer to think that the brute was suffering from the rabies, and in this he was not mistaken, as later developments proved.

It was learned that the dog had bitten another child yesterday, but contrary to the expectations of the officer, it had not been tied up. Going up to the dog he attempted to put a rope around its neck, when, with a savage growl, it sprang at the officer at the same time snapped at his hand. So near did the animal come to inflicting a wound with its teeth that the flesh on the inside of the policeman's hand was marked, but fortunately, not penetrated.

Finding it dangerous to attempt to get the rope around the dog's neck an effort was made to chase it from the porch and then shoot it on the lawn in front of the house. With his pistol in readiness the officer went up to the dog for the second time and attempted to drive it from the porch. Before he had time to level the weapon at the dog's head it sprang at him again, catching hold of his trousers leg. With a well directed blow from the foot that was free, the policeman succeeded in kicking the brute off. It then ran under the porch.

After considerable difficulty the dog was chased out from its place of refuge, and just as it appeared in sight the officer struck it a heavy blow on the head with his mace, which rendered it senseless. Then picking the shivering carcass up and throwing it into the street the bullets were fired into it and death was then a certainty.

There is little doubt that the dog was mad. It had not eaten anything for several days and had acted strangely. Its eyes had become terribly inflamed and it otherwise showed unmistakable signs of being afflicted with the rabies. Officer Morris took desperate chances with the animal.

A SKETCH.

A builder's yard, a ship upon the ways,
The groan of straining planks, the snap of stays,
The clearing of a crowd, "She moves! She's off!"
And with a sudden rush and splash the great ship
Leaves the wharf.

A storm swept, foam tossed sea, a howling gale,
A ship half lost in foam, a rag of sail,
The tolling of a bell, now lost, now clear—
"The shore! The shore!" She strikes in crashing
Waves to disappear.

A summer's eve, a calm and wailing tide,
A dismal stretch of sand that tries to hide
The bones of some great vessel, grown on high,
Outlined against the sunset's last faint glow,
Awaiting the sky.
—Julian Hinckley in Outlook.

QUEEN ELIZABETH'S FAULTS

She Was Very Vain and Inordinately Fond of Fine Dress.

Yet Elizabeth was never really successful with her wardrobe as a more feminine woman might have been. Her dresses were never beautiful, only ludicrously and most inappropriately magnificent—laden with jewels, weighted down with cloth of gold, stiff with silver embroidery and so heavy that even her big, powerful frame must, without supporting vanity, have felt the fatigue of carrying them about. Elizabeth was certainly vain, but she cannot claim femininity merely on that account, for vanity is by no means an exclusively feminine characteristic. There are perhaps more vain women than vain men because women have more leisure and their costumes afford greater opportunities for vanity than the strangely hideous clothing which custom has arranged for men, but no thoughtful (feminine) observer can doubt that a vain man is vain than a vain woman.

Elizabeth's hands were her especial pride, and, judging from her portraits, they were certainly beautiful. They were laden with jewels, and it was her habit in public to pull her rings off with absent artlessness and push them on again, moving those white hands about in the most obvious way. Once, during the grave consideration of a state paper, wherein her cold sagacity never took second place, she interrupted the discussion to ask whether the Duc d'Anjou, who was at one time one of her suitors, had been told what a pretty foot she had and how white and well rounded was her arm? This in the woman who financed the armada with hard headed economy, who dared the superstitious terrors of her own conscience in her high handed and impudent treatment of the bishop, whose interest in methods of torture for state prisoners was most mechanical and intelligent, entirely unhampered by any squeamish feminine hesitation as to blood or pain, is most curious.

In connection with this last characteristic of cruelty vanity is not at all unprecedented. Indeed, if one observe closely one will notice that excessively vain persons have almost always a strange inclination toward cruelty. The accounts of what Queen Elizabeth permitted and indeed commanded in this respect will hardly bear reading by us sensitive folk today.—Margaret Deland in Harper's Bazar.

Trees Older Than the Pyramids.

A wonder of longevity is the so called dragon's blood tree of Tenerife. Rosin obtained from this tree has been found in sepulchers, where it had been used for embalming the dead. Trees of this species are now standing which are estimated as being older than the Egyptian pyramids.

NEW STYLES IN COLLARS.

Low Fold Variety and Wings Again Coming Into Favor.

It would not be misquoting those who may be accepted as authorities on the subject to state that collar styles show an inclination to most decided change, says The Haberdasher. For some years the fold collar has reigned supreme; every other style was a mere second proposition. Just as the manufacturers have learned how to make fold collars fashion rudely orders them to go at something else. The new mode favors low fold collars and wings. Of course the wing collars were not designed to take the place of fold collars, as one was distinctly a winter style and the other just as distinctly a summer style. The wide fold collar has been practically abandoned by the fine trade, and now 2½ inches is considered the limit except in the cheaper grades. The low fold collars are both sensible and slightly. They vary in width from one inch up to two inches—the 1½ and 1¾ being very popular. Square corners have the call in the lower collars and round corners in the higher styles. A style that is now being sold extensively in some of the best retail shops, but which has not yet appeared in any of the "brand" lines, is the fold collar that shows about half of the width of the cravat band. It is possible that this collar will shortly be introduced in the leading brands. It is a good style, both for summer and winter, as a large or a small cravat may be worn with it.

Nearly every house in Troy is preparing wing collars for fall trade. These will be solid collars, as the inserted wing was discarded as being inferior to the solid wing years ago. The new collar will show wings of moderate proportions. Poke collars will also be given prominence in the new lines. The idea of marking collars with the height as well as size has been taken up and will be made a feature in one or two of the most prominent brands. We think that this will be a great help to the consumer as well as the retailer. It will at least do away with the necessity for so many names.

FAST IRRIGATION PROJECTS

Plans For Reclaiming Lands in the Arid Regions.

Plans have just been completed for two of the largest irrigation projects, writes the New York Post's correspondent from Phenix. A. T. A company of southern Arizona and California capitalists has filed a claim upon 140,000 acres of desert government land in northern Yuma county on the Colorado river, and with 40,000 acres purchased from the Blythe estate they intend to turn the vast tract into farm land and put it under cultivation by turning upon it the waters of the Colorado. It is understood that $250,000 will be paid for the Blythe land and that $1,000,000 will be spent on a storage dam and canal system. Los Angeles, Yuma and San Diego capital is interested in the project. There is a project also on foot which involves the pumping of water for a very large area of land east of Phenix. A company which controls the canals that supply the eastern end of the Salt river valley with water is placing a big electrical plant at the head waters of the canals, where there is a fall of over 20 feet. Here they intend to develop power to raise water enough from half a hundred deep wells to irrigate several thousand acres, as much land again as they can now supply from their canals.

It is a well known fact that under most of the desert lands in Arizona, where on the surface water is rarely seen, there is an apparently inexhaustible underground flow. The extremely high price of fuel, however, has heretofore been a bar to pumping water to the surface, and the introduction of electricity provides the promise of the reclamation of many miles of desert where canals cannot reach.

Will Model Frances Willard Statue.

It was announced recently at Buffalo that the statue of Frances E. Willard to be presented by the state of Illinois to the national capitol at Washington will be modeled by Helen F. Mears of Oshkosh, Wis. For two years Miss Mears studied with Augustus St. Gaudens and has been his assistant in serious work in New York and Paris. The statue will be of white marble, and the work upon it will be pushed with all possible promptness.

AN ENCOUNTER WITH MAD DOG

Policeman Morris Dispatched the Brute After a Dangerous Experience.

Policeman Morris cut short the life of a mad dog yesterday afternoon, but in performing the execution had an encounter with the brute which came near resulting seriously for him. The dog was the property of John Wood, and had been reported at police headquarters as being dangerous to the community, having bitten a child. Going to the home of the dog's owner, at the corner of Forest street and Grove alley, Officer Morris found the dog lying on a porch in front of the house. The condition of the animal's eyes led the officer to think that the brute was suffering from the rabies, and in this he was not mistaken, as later developments proved.

It was learned that the dog had bitten another child yesterday, but contrary to the expectations of the officer, it had not been tied up. Going up to the dog he attempted to put a rope around its neck, when, with a savage growl, it sprang at the officer at the same time snapped at his hand. So near did the animal come to inflicting a wound with its teeth that the flesh on the inside of the policeman's hand was marked, but fortunately, not penetrated.

Finding it dangerous to attempt to get the rope around the dog's neck an effort was made to chase it from the porch and then shoot it on the lawn in front of the house. With his pistol in readiness the officer went up to the dog for the second time and attempted to drive it from the porch. Before he had time to level the weapon at the dog's head it sprang at him again, catching hold of his trousers leg. With a well directed blow from the foot that was free, the policeman succeeded in kicking the brute off. It then ran under the porch.

After considerable difficulty the dog was chased out from its place of refuge, and just as it appeared in sight the officer struck it a heavy blow on the head with his mace, which rendered it senseless. Then picking the shivering carcass up and throwing it into the street the bullets were fired into it and death was then a certainty.

There is little doubt that the dog was mad. It had not eaten anything for several days and had acted strangely. Its eyes had become terribly inflamed and it otherwise showed unmistakable signs of being afflicted with the rabies. Officer Morris took desperate chances with the animal.

A SKETCH.

A builder's yard, a ship upon the ways,
The groan of straining planks, the snap of stays,
The cheering of a crowd: "She moves! She's off!"
And with a sudden rush and splash the great ship
Leaves the wharf.

A storm swept, foam tossed sea, a howling gale,
A ship half lost in foam, a rag of sail,
The tolling of a bell, now lost, now clear—
"The shore! The shore!" She strikes in crashing
Waves to disappear.

A summer's eve, a calm and wailing tide,
A dismal stretch of sand that tries to hide
The bones of some great vessel, proud on high,
Outlined against the sunset's last faint glow
Await the sky.

She Was Very Vain and Inordinately Fond of Fine Dress.

Yet Elizabeth was never really successful with her wardrobe as a more feminine woman might have been. Her dresses were never beautiful, only ludicrously and most inappropriately magnificent—laden with jewels, weighted down with cloth of gold, stiff with silver embroidery and so heavy that even her big, powerful frame must, without supporting vanity, have felt the fatigue of carrying them about. Elizabeth was certainly vain, but she cannot claim femininity merely on that account, for vanity is by no means an exclusively feminine characteristic. There are perhaps more vain women than vain men because women have more leisure and their costumes afford greater opportunities for vanity than the strangely hideous clothing which custom has arranged for men, but no thoughtful (feminine) observer can doubt that a vain man is vain than a vain woman.

Elizabeth's hands were her especial pride, and, judging from her portraits, they were certainly beautiful. They were laden with jewels, and it was her habit in public to pull her rings off with absent artlessness and push them on again, moving those white hands about in the most obvious way. Once, during the grave consideration of a state paper, wherein her cold sagacity never took second place, she interrupted the discussion to ask whether the Duc d'Anjou, who was at one time one of her suitors, had been told what a pretty foot she had and how white and well rounded was her arm? This in the woman who financed the armada with hard headed economy, who dared the superstitious terrors of her own conscience in her high handed and impudent treatment of the bishop, whose interest in methods of torture for state prisoners was most mechanical and intelligent, entirely unhampered by any squeamish feminine hesitation as to blood or pain, is most curious.

In connection with this last characteristic of cruelty vanity is not at all unprecedented. Indeed, if one observe closely one will notice that excessively vain persons have almost always a strange inclination toward cruelty. The accounts of what Queen Elizabeth permitted and indeed commanded in this respect will hardly bear reading by us sensitive folk today.—Margaret Deland in Harper's Bazar.

Trees Older Than the Pyramids.

A wonder of longevity is the so called dragon's blood tree of Tenerife. Rosin obtained from this tree has been found in sepulchers, where it had been used for embalming the dead. Trees of this species are now standing which are estimated as being older than the Egyptian pyramids.

It would not be misquoting those who may be accepted as authorities on the subject to state that collar styles show an inclination to most decided change, says The Haberdasher. For some years the fold collar has reigned supreme; every other style was a mere second proposition. Just as the manufacturers have learned how to make fold collars fashion rudely orders them to go at something else. The new mode favors low fold collars and wings. Of course the wing collars were not designed to take the place of fold collars, as one was distinctly a winter style and the other just as distinctly a summer style. The wide fold collar has been practically abandoned by the fine trade, and now 2½ inches is considered the limit except in the cheaper grades. The low fold collars are both sensible and slightly. They vary in width from one inch up to two inches—the 1½ and 1¾ being very popular. Square corners have the call in the lower collars and round corners in the higher styles. A style that is now being sold extensively in some of the best retail shops, but which has not yet appeared in any of the "brand" lines, is the fold collar that shows about half of the width of the cravat band. It is possible that this collar will shortly be introduced in the leading brands. It is a good style, both for summer and winter, as a large or a small cravat may be worn with it.

Nearly every house in Troy is preparing wing collars for fall trade. These will be solid collars, as the inserted wing was discarded as being inferior to the solid wing years ago. The new collar will show wings of moderate proportions. Poke collars will also be given prominence in the new lines. The idea of marking collars with the height as well as size has been taken up and will be made a feature in one or two of the most prominent brands. We think that this will be a great help to the consumer as well as the retailer. It will at least do away with the necessity for so many names.

VAST IRRIGATION PROJECTS

Plans For Reclaiming Lands in the Arid Regions.

Plans have just been completed for two of the largest irrigation projects, writes the New York Post's correspondent from Phenix, A. T. A company of southern Arizona and California capitalists has filed a claim upon 140,000 acres of desert government land in northern Yuma county on the Colorado river, and with 40,000 acres purchased from the Blythe estate they intend to turn the vast tract into farm land and put it under cultivation by turning upon it the waters of the Colorado. It is understood that $250,000 will be paid for the Blythe land and that $1,000,000 will be spent on a storage dam and canal system. Los Angeles, Yuma and San Diego capital is interested in the project. There is a project also on foot which involves the pumping of water for a very large area of land east of Phenix. A company which controls the canals that supply the eastern end of the Salt river valley with water is placing a big electrical plant at the head waters of the canals, where there is a fall of over 20 feet. Here they intend to develop power to raise water enough from half a hundred wells to irrigate several thousand acres, as much land again as they can now supply from their canals.

It is a well known fact that under most of the desert lands in Arizona, where on the surface water is rarely seen, there is an apparently inexhaustible underground flow. The extremely high price of fuel, however, has heretofore been a bar to pumping water to the surface, and the introduction of electricity provides the promise of the reclamation of many miles of desert where canals cannot reach.

Will Model Frances Willard Statue.

It was announced recently at Buffalo that the statue of Frances E. Willard to be presented by the state of Illinois to the national capitol at Washington will be modeled by Helen F. Mears of Oshkosh, Wis. For two years Miss Mears studied with Augustus St. Gaudens and has been his assistant in serious work in New York and Paris. The statue will be of white marble, and the work upon it will be pushed with all possible promptness.
